

War Cutoff Voted

... House, Senate Accept Aug. 15

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's compromise offer to halt all U.S. combat activities in Indochina by Aug. 15—unless Congress grants more time—passed Congress Friday night.

The Senate accepted a House-passed $3.4 billion supplemental bill that cuts off all past and present funds for combat activities in Cambodia, Laos and North and South Vietnam on that date.

The Senate also accepted the compromise in an amendment to a stop-gap spending authority bill.

That bill, authorizing the federal government to continue spending past midnight Saturday when its current appropriation bills run out was sent to the House.

The House had adjourned by the time the Senate passed it and will take up the bill Saturday.

The Senate gave the $3.4 billion supplemental containing the compromise Congress' final approval 72 to 14. It had passed the stop-gap spending authority containing the compromise 73 to 16.

The measure was approved by a vote of 63 to 26.

The fight against the compromise was led by an impassioned appeal by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield who called it a capitulation of Congress' constitutional war-making powers.

But bombing opponents including Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations argued that because of House inability to override the President's veto of an immediate bombing cutoff, the compromise was the only way "to bring to a close this tragic episode in our history."

Fulbright told the Senate he had won acceptance by the White House of three Foreign Relations Committee guidelines for the compromise:

—The Aug. 15 cut off is not authority for the President to continue bombing until that time.

—It's effect would be to preclude after Aug. 15 any resumption of hostilities without Congress' express approval.

—The committee expects no escalation of the bombing in Cambodia during the 46 days or resumption of bombing elsewhere in Indochina.

In an emotional speech for the compromise, bombing opponent Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Congress can never force a halt to the bombing with a bill the President will not sign.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said the compromise would give Congress' sanction to 46 more days of bombing. He asked Fulbright if the President also would have power during that time to resume bombing in North and South Vietnam.

"Well, that's correct," Fulbright said. "He already has that power. As long as the military follows his orders he can do these things."

The House accepted the Aug. 15 compromise on a $3.4 billion supplemental money bill, the same one Nixon vetoed Wednesday because Congress had put an immediate bombing cutoff in it.

The Senate accepted it in a so-called continuing resolution that gives the Pentagon and other federal agency stop-gap authority to keep spending after their present annual appropriations run out at midnight Saturday and until Congress approves their new ones.

Exon Names Matzke To Take Over DAS

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Stanley A. Matzke Jr. will trade the directorship of the Department of Economic Development for the top spot in the Department of Administrative Services (DAS) and a $2,000-a-year raise, Gov. J. James Exon said Friday.

Exon said Matzke will assume his new position July 2, the day after the new fiscal year begins, but added that the appointment will not be official for 10 days in which time technicalities, such as changing nameplates for check-writing procedures, will be completed.

Matzke, 39, replaces Gus Lieske, the controversial head of DAS, who was named a special assistant to Exon in charge of a newly-created Executive Office of Management and Budget.

In the promotion, Matzke will receive a salary raise from his present $16,900 to $18,900 a year, the same salary paid the outgoing Lieske.

Exon also announced that State Planning Director Don Nelson, 29, will assume additional duties as deputy director of DAS. Exon said Nelson's salary will be adjusted upwards to reflect the added responsibilities by an as-yet undetermined amount.

No decision has been made as yet on the future of Don Skeahan, the deputy director of DAS under Lieske for the past year.

In Matzke's absence, Exon said the Department of Economic Development will be run by Deputy Director Ron Mertens. Exon said a determination will be made at a later date whether to make Mertens the new director or the acting director or to hire someone new.

Lieske assumes his new duties within the governor's office July 1, after this year's legislative session which saw a bill called by some a "get Lieske" measure fall short of overriding Exon's veto. Lieske's demeanor and administrative policies, hewn in the Exon tradition, made him a frequent source of friction with legislators.

Lieske's new budget position within the governor's office will likely remove him from confrontations with legislators. Under Exon, Lieske will still be paid out of the DAS budget, since the move was not contemplated in the fiscal 1974 budget bill.

Regarding relations with the Legislature, Exon said if the Legislature "can't get along with Stan, they can't get along with anybody."

In his two years as Economic Development director, Matzke witnessed a record in the number of new industries moving to Nebraska. Exon variously described Matzke as an "excellent" administrator with a "good, sound business mind" who has set an "enviable record."

"With this new combination (Matzke-Nelson), we have two aggressive, young individuals whom I have complete confidence in," Exon said.

Prior to his stint at Economic Development, Matzke ran in and lost the 1970 secretary of state race. From 1965 to 1970 Matzke was an instructor and administrator at the University of Nebraska's Curtis facilities and College of Agriculture.

Asked if his appointment is any indication of future political ambitions, Matzke said, "No, it says I'm willing to serve any place the governor wants me to serve."

"I am pleased and honored."

DELORA... gaining experience on the job.

Youth in Action

Girl Likes Job In Marine Office

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

"May I help you?" queries the distinctly feminine voice of Delora Hughes at the U.S. Marine Corps recruiting office in Lincoln.

A new addition to the four-man, all-male office, Delora is one of the 140 young people who have been placed in jobs this summer through the Public Employment Program (PEP).

According to city manpower planning director Al Cooper, PEP follows the same guidelines as former neighborhood youth corps programs which aim at finding jobs for low-income youth from areas of the city where unemployment is the highest.

The 16-year-old Lincoln High School junior has plenty of praise for the program.

"I probably wouldn't have found a job on my own," related Delora, who works 25 hours a week.

Employed as a clerk-typist, Delora finds it helpful to have studied typing and business principles at school.

She admits to a bit of "on-the-job training" when it comes to typing numbers, but feels she's getting better all the time.

Delora's duties vary from preparing mailing lists to taking charge of the office when the others are out. She even makes "pop" runs for the fellows.

Working for four Marines might be intimidating for some, but Delora noted that "these guys make it easy."

She explained how her bosses "don't just run through things" but take the time to explain everything carefully. She doesn't even mind the teasing she gets when she does "something dumb."

Delora believes she will be given more responsibility in the office in time. She'll continue on the job through her senior year, working 10 hours a week after school.

The daughter of Mrs. Arnell Hughes, 1710 No. 25, Delora is undecided about her post-high school plans. She hopes to head in the direction of business school or perhaps the university.

But with two more years in the recruiting office ahead of her, Delora doesn't preclude the possibility of joining the Marines.

Week Of Testimony Ends...

Dean: 'Terrible Cloud Is Over Government'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ending an exhausting week of dramatic disclosures and accusations, John W. Dean III told the Senate Watergate committee Friday that "there is a terrible cloud over this government that must be removed so that we can have effective government."

Without expressing remorse for having been a central figure in the cover-up, Dean said "it has been most difficult for me because I have had to speak against the President of the United States, some of my friends and former colleagues."

But, he said, he attempted to end the cover-up initially from working within the White House "and when that didn't work I took it upon myself to work from without."

Dean was the first witness in five weeks of hearings to involve President Nixon directly in the cover-up of the break-in of Democratic Party headquarters, saying that the President knew since last Sept. 15—or maybe before—of efforts to hide the truth.

"I earnestly pray that this committee reaches the truth in this entire matter and reaches it as quickly as possible because I think there is a terrible cloud over this government that must be removed so that we can have effective government," Dean said.

He had spent four times more hours before the committee than any previous witness—beginning with the first day when he read a 245-page statement meticulously outlining the cover-up sequence.

The rest of the time was spent in going again and again over details, as each of the seven senators in turn questioned him.

But he stuck fast to his story that he was at the center of the cover-up, that he acted with the knowledge and encouragement of his superiors, former chief of staff H.R. Haldeman and domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman.

Haldeman is scheduled as a witness sometime in July. The committee recessed for the Independence Day holiday until July 10, when it will hear from former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, the campaign manager for the Nixon 1972 re-election campaign at the time of the break-in, June 17.

Dean charged that he was at two meetings with Mitchell in the January and February last year when illegal acts were discussed with Jeb Stuart Magruder and G. Gordon Liddy. He said he was not at the third when the plans allegedly were approved by Mitchell.

And he said he communicated everything that had happened to Haldeman, the man who saw the President most often.

He also admitted being involved in procuring money to keep the Watergate defendants quiet, of prompting Magruder to commit perjury and of taking $4,850 of committee funds to finance his honeymoon—money that he said he later returned.

"I would hope the committee would put the White House on notice or they may not be there when I get there," the former presidential lawyer said after testifying he needs the files to answer some of the panel's questions.

Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr. D-N.C. directed the committee staff to make arrangements.

Dean's final day, the windup of the fifth week of the hearings, was spent retracing the conversations at which Dean said he discussed the cover-up of the Watergate scandal with President Nixon.

Neville To Head Review Of Med Center Fee Plan

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska announced Friday that Howard R. Neville, NU executive vice-president for administration, will head a five-member task force to review the Professional Fee Plan at the Medical Center.

Other members will include John D. Coe, president of the Nebraska Medical Association; Robert B. Kugel, dean of the NU College of Medicine; Frank L. Land, chairman of the Medical Center department of family practice, and Frederick F. Pausan, a professor of internal medicine.

The task force has been given the charge by the university's Board of Regents to "make recommendations to the board before July 14 on revisions which should be considered to the present Professional Fee Plan at the University of Nebraska Medical Center."

The Regents also extended the July 1 expiration date on the fee plan to give the task force a month to come up with recommendations for change.

The plan is one which permits clinicians at the Medical Center to treat patients specifically referred to them and pocket the fees.

Initial Watergate Prosecutors Quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three assistant U.S. attorneys who had been assigned to the Watergate investigation since the break-in at Democratic headquarters resigned from the case Friday.

Earl J. Silbert, Seymour Glanzner and Donald E. Campbell quit after conferring for more than two hours with special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

The three federal lawyers led the prosecution of the original seven Watergate defendants, but have since come under criticism from allegedly not pursuing leads that some persons believe could have disclosed wider involvement in the June 17, 1972 break-in. The original defendants were convicted.

Speculation that they are resigning because of criticism is wholly unwarranted, the three men said in a letter of resignation.

Cox said in a letter that his staff thus far had nothing to show that "you did not pursue your professional duties according to your honest judgment and in complete good faith."

At January's Watergate trial, Silbert described defendant G. Gordon Liddy as "the boss... the man in charge, the money man, the supervisor, the organizer, the administrator" of the break-in and wiretapping.

But, since then, a variety of former White House aides and officials of President Nixon's re-election committee have been linked in testimony to the break-in and subsequent cover-up.

Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy campaign chief, has testified that former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell approved the break-in. Mitchell headed Nixon's campaign until a month after the break-in. Liddy was counsel for the campaign's finance committee.

Since he took over the Watergate case May 23, Cox had refused to commit himself whether he would ask the three to remain on his staff.

After meeting in Mday with Silbert, Campbell and Glanzner, Cox released the text of a letter to them in which he said "the public interest requires you as honorable and responsible public officials to carry on while I am familiarizing myself with all that has been done and at that time we can do what is most appropriate for the future."

The three prosecutors had offered at that point to resign.

One of Cox's first moves was to recruit James Neal, a former federal prosecutor, to work with the assistant U.S. attorneys in developing a new Watergate case.

In recent weeks, Neal had shifted from familiarizing himself with the case to taking control of it.

In accepting the resignations Friday, Cox wrote that "your help has been invaluable. Without it, we would be weeks behind."

In a reference to criticism of their handling of the case, Cox said:

"Lawyers often differ on questions of judgment, and there are points on which my judgment might have varied from yours. Thus far in the investigation, however, none of us has seen anything to show that you did not pursue your professional duties according to your honest judgment and in complete good faith."

In a letter of resignation to Cox, the three prosecutors said, "not until after the successful prosecution of the seven defendants did a single witness step forward with material information except for one bookkeeper with limited knowledge."

"In the absence of sufficient evidence to charge anyone other than the seven defendants and in light of the refusal of any of the defendants and others to talk, we decided, prior to Sept. 15, and... told defense counsel, that we would follow the strategy of convicting the seven defendants, granting them limited immunity after trial, and then compelling their testimony before the grand jury concerning the involvement of others."

Washington — President Nixon relayed assurances to Congress that United States military activity in Indochina would end by Aug. 15 and that he would seek congressional approval if additional military action were needed after that date. The House accepted the compromise and voted to delay a cutoff of funds for military activities in Indochina.

Narcotics Bureau Chief Quits, Citing Interference

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rivalry, confusion and White House intervention blunted the Nixon administration's drug control effort, John E. Ingersoll said Friday after quitting as chief of the largest antidrug unit.

Departing from his custom of defending administration policy, Ingersoll complained of rivalry among drug enforcement agencies and disruptive White House interference in the policies of his own unit, the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

At President Nixon's order, the four agencies merge this weekend into the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA).

Later Friday, Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson designated John R. Bartels Jr. to serve as a caretaker administrator of the DEA. He said the appointment is "pending the choice of a permanent administrator." Bartels has been a deputy director of the office of Drug Abuse Law Enforcement (DALE).

Ingersoll, a career law enforcement officer, said former presidential aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman squeezed him out of government.

He said he would have been interested in heading the DEA if the White House had guaranteed a hands-off policy, but he learned that Haldeman and Ehrlichman wanted him out and suspected it was because he resisted White House pressures.

Though the Watergate affair forced Haldeman and Ehrlichman to resign, Ingersoll said the situation remains unsettled.

At a news conference, Ingersoll was asked to elaborate on the accusation of White House intervention. "It's really hard to describe because it was the kind of thing you had to live with every day," he said.

"There was no concerted effort to influence what I did, but by the same token, I don't think I was given any opportunity to influence personnel choice selections and so on," he continued. "More than policy setting, it got into implementation of policy and how you should go about doing your job."

Ingersoll said he felt his resistance was "one reason for my demise."

In his resignation letter to Richardson, Ingersoll said he had no choice but to quit after he

HEW Relaxes Big City School Funds Criteria

Washington (UPI) — HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger ordered a relaxation of civil rights requirements Friday to enable at least five big city school systems to qualify for special federal school funds by mid-August.

The cities — Baltimore, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles and Oklahoma City — previously had been denied funds because of faculty assignments that did not meet the current requirements which Weinberger wants revised. "They are not in compliance under the regulation that is going to be rewritten," said a spokesman for the U.S. Office of Education.

In a statement issued by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Weinberger said he wanted the rules rewritten "in order to provide more realistic standards for faculty assignments in large school districts."

He said the new rules would "give less weight to mechanistic numerical ratios and more to promising programs for desegregating districts."

DALE issued a statement saying only that the agency's "record of accomplishment speaks for itself." Ambrose plans to conduct a news conference next Thursday before he, too, leaves for a private job.

3 Original Prosecutors Resign

Washington — The three original Watergate government prosecutors withdrew from the case, maintaining that their investigation had been "conducted forthrightly, vigorously and professionally." Nixon Asks Cut In Energy Use

Astronauts Say Exercise Is Key . . . 'Average' People Can Fly In Space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab's astronauts, now returned to glowing health, said Friday the "average man or woman" can fly in space without serious ill effects, but they're "going to have to do some exercise."

Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Paul J. Weitz and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin, in their first news conference since the end of their 28-day space mission, said their experience showed that anybody in "reasonable, normal health" can become a space traveler. "I think the average man or woman can fly in space," said Conrad, the Skylab 1 commander. "I think they probably will."

The physical strain of readapting to gravity after living for long periods of time in weightlessness, he said, can be overcome by doing exercise while in space.

"If you take a factory worker or scientist and leave him up there for 30 days," said Conrad, he's going to have to do some exercise."

Marine Corps Drops Charges Against POW

Washington (UPI) — The Marine Corps said Friday that charges of prison camp misconduct and collaboration with the enemy against Marine Sgt. Abel Larry Kavanaugh have been nullified by the young ex-POW's apparent suicide.

The charges, filed by Air Force Col. Theodore Guy, will not appear on Kavanaugh's records, a spokesman for the Marine Corps said.

"A man's innocent until proven guilty," the spokesman said. "Kavanaugh can't be brought to trial, so that's the end of it. As far as the law is concerned he is innocent."

Nine other former POWs, seven enlisted men also charged by Guy and two officers charged by another ex-prisoner, are awaiting a Pentagon decision whether to bring them to court martial.

astronauts return to earth. "Our postflight conditions demonstrated there are changes and there is a price to be paid in that it takes time to return" to normal, said Kerwin. He added, however, that within two days of their return to earth, "We were all able to carry out a normal day's work."

Kerwin said he suffered some nausea and vomiting. Weitz said he had some dizziness, and Conrad said he had a brief spell of vertigo after returning to earth.

"It took a while to lose the heavy feeling in the arms and legs," said Conrad. "For a while I almost had to shuffle my feet."

Exercise, said the Skylab 1 commander, may be the answer to allowing man to stay in space for long periods of time. He said he and his crewmates worked out daily on a bicycle device.

"I think the bicycle ergometer exerciser contributed significantly to our well-being," said Conrad. "If it weren't for the bicycle I think that they would have carried us out of the spacecraft."

Asked if their experience gave any indications if man would be able to withstand a mission of two years or more to Mars,

Kerwin said, "I am confident that we're going to be able to work it out."

Conrad said he and his crewmates left behind in orbit a smoothly operating Skylab space station which is ready for the 56-day mission of the Skylab 2 astronauts.

"They've got a good home up there and they can go for 56 days with no strain," he said.

Skylab 2 is set for a July 28 launch.

Penn Central Without Funds

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Penn Central, the railroad giant in the throes of bankruptcy proceedings, said Friday that without massive government help by October all its trains will stop "before the end of the year."

Railroad trustees have tried unsuccessfully for three years to reorganize the railroad which runs on 20,000 miles of track in 16 states and two Canadian provinces.

The trustees said they would prefer Congress provide the necessary hundreds of millions of dollars to "ensure adequate and efficient rail service."

Nixon Urges Curbing Energy Consumption

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon, urging development of a "conservation ethic," called on all Americans Friday to cut down their personal consumption of energy by five per cent in the next 12 months.

He suggested in his energy conservation plan such things as driving cars slower and using less air conditioning and heating to save fuel and electricity.

"The conservation of existing energy resources is not a proposal, it is a necessity," the President declared.

In a special energy message to Congress, addressing what he called one of the nation's "most critical problems," Nixon said conservation of resources was "a requirement that will remain with us indefinitely."

As a result, the President said, "I believe America must develop an energy conservation ethic."

Nixon's proposals included spending $10 billion over the next five years for a program of research and development in the energy field and the establishing a cabinet-level Department of Energy and Natural Resources "responsible for the balanced utilization and conservation of America's energy and natural resources."

He appointed Republican G.V. John A. Love of Colorado as a $42,500-a-year presidential assistant and chief policy officer and White House adviser on energy matters.

Love, 57, a ruggedly handsome 6-foot-3, will head a new White House Energy Office. Love — who would have ended his third term as Colorado governor in January, 1975 — said he will resign the state post after winding up some legislative business. He will be succeeded by Lt. Gov. John Vanderhoof. After a 35-minute meeting with Nixon at the Western White House, Love told newsmen there is "no instant panacea" for solving the nation's energy problems. "We're going to have to fight this problem on all fronts for at least the next decade."

Asked what the average American citizen could do to help, Love said, "We cannot waste energy."

He cited Nixon's suggestions that air conditioners and heating units be set at lower temperatures, that highway speeds be reduced and that consumers choose appliances that will use less energy.

Love expressed his conviction that voluntary methods of conservation would be successful. He said mandatory allocation of supplies and rationing of energy would have a far-reaching impact, not only on the economy, but on American society.

"If there is any way we can stay away from rationing, I would prefer that," he said.

Nixon said that the federal government will take the lead in energy conservation by reducing its consumption by 7 per cent in the next year.

Federal Reserve Board Acts To Tighten Supply Of Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board moved Friday to tighten up the nation's money supply further, boosting its interest rate charged to member banks to seven per cent, the highest level ever.

The board also increased its reserve requirements on all but the first $2 million on demand deposits at member banks by one-half of one percentage point.

Both moves were designed "to restrain continuing excessive expansion in money and credit," the board said in a statement.

The interest rate that the central bank charges member banks, known as the discount rate, was increased from 6.5 per cent to 7 per cent, effective Monday.

The 6.5 per cent rate had been the highest rate since May 1921. For a brief time in 1921, the New York federal reserve bank had a discount rate of seven per cent.

The board's move was aimed at cooling off the nation's fast-expanding economy and reducing inflationary pressures that had been building up.

The discount rate change is designed to discourage borrowing by banks from the Federal Reserve system. Usually, all other interest rates are scaled upward from the discount rate.

The two moves may help the Nixon administration's effort to control prices, not only during the 60-day price freeze but during the Phase 4 wage-price controls that will follow.

The action increasing reserve requirements in essence means that the board is requiring commercial banks to keep more cash on hand in relation to their deposits. This reduces the amount of money available for lending and therefore cools off business activity.

Allende's Forces End Rebel Drive

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Rebels from an armored regiment attacked President Salvador Allende's palace Friday with machine guns, but military forces loyal to his leftist government crushed the uprising in a matter of hours. A state of emergency was imposed throughout the nation.

An undetermined number of persons were reported killed and dozens wounded in the attack by an estimated 100 soldiers and four tanks of Chile's 23,000-man army.

The first assault came during the morning rush hour in downtown Santiago shortly before 9 a.m. Allende announced in a nationwide broadcast before noon that the insurrection was put down and that a majority of the rebel soldiers had surrendered.

The few dozen members of the 900-man 2nd Armored Regiment were reported to have taken part in the uprising. They brought four tanks up to the doors of La Moneda Palace but the tanks' guns were not fired. Machine guns opened up on the palace guard. Allende was not there at the time.

It was the first act of open rebellion against Allende since he came to power in 1970.

"The situation throughout the country is calm and absolutely tranquil," Allende said over nationwide radio after the attack. He was in his suburban home when the assault began.

Allende said the majority of the rebels surrendered after the palace area was surrounded by loyal army troops.

The rebels had arrived in the four tanks and half a dozen armored personnel carriers and trucks.

The rebels stationed a tank with its cannon pointing at the front door of the palace in Plaza Constitution, located outside its main entrance. The cannon did not fire.

The rebels swept the buildings surrounding the plaza with gunfire, breaking a number of windows and pinning down pedestrians.

Then palace guards belonging to the carabineros, Chile's paramilitary police, returned the fire with automatic weapons and machine guns from inside the building.

One unidentified person inside the two-story concrete palace, unfurled a red, white and blue Chilean flag from the balcony of an upper window as machine-gun fire rattled through the plaza.

Opinions Differ On Panel's Power To Call President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special prosecutor Archibald Cox has received differing staff opinions on the legal questions of whether the Watergate grand jury can force President Nixon to testify and whether it could indict him.

A spokesman for the special prosecutor's office said Friday Cox has not decided which opinions he feels are correct and probably would not decide unless the prosecutors reach a point in their Watergate investigation where they believe they need Nixon's testimony.

"No public action is contemplated on the legal questions in the near future," said James Doyle, the prosecutor's spokesman.

Ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III has testified that he told the President about the Watergate cover-up last September and that Nixon participated in that cover-up.

Nixon on May 22 issued a statement denying that he knew of the cover-up before March 21 of this year.

Cox told a news conference June 18 that he had asked his staff to study the legal questions involved but cautioned "it would be wrong to draw any inference from that."

Doyle said Cox now has received "a set of memoranda reaching divergent conclusions" or indicting or subpoenaing the President.

He declined to say whether any private inquiries had been made to the White House concerning the President's availability.

"We've made it a policy not to disclose what we may or may not be doing in order not to unduly publicize our actions and possibly jeopardize anyone's rights," he said.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., vice chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, appealed Friday to the President to give a sworn account of his meetings with Dean.

In a television interview, Baker also said he does not believe the committee can compel the President to testify.

Gerald L. Warren, White House spokesman, said in San Clemente Thursday that it would be constitutionally inappropriate for the President to respond to a subpoena from the committee.

Warren said that Nixon would not appear voluntarily.

Melvin R. Laird, new presidential adviser for domestic affairs, had said the President would respond to accusations about Watergate at a news conference.

Baker, who said he hoped some way could be found for Nixon to submit a sworn statement, said he thought a news conference would be the worst forum for a presidential response.

The question of a presidential subpoena came up when the Watergate hearings resumed Friday with Dean still on the stand.

Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., asked Dean if he or other White House attorneys had done research on the constitutional questions that could arise if a grand jury or congressional committee sought to subpoena the President.

Dean said he knew of no such research.

The Constitution contains no provision specifically granting a president immunity from being summoned by either a grand jury or Congress. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., chairman of the Watergate Committee, contends no such immunity exists.

In the only case where a president was subpoenaed, Thomas Jefferson refused to honor a summons to testify at Aaron Burr's treason trial. Jefferson did supply the court the evidence it wanted, a letter in his possession.

"To comply with such calls would leave the nation without an executive branch," Jefferson said.

Chief Justice John Marshall allowed Jefferson to ignore the subpoena but at the same time declared "a subpoena may issue to a president." The question has never been further tested in court.

Dean Says Wallace Foe Given Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nixon fund-raiser Herbert W. Kalmbach supplied between $200,000 and $400,000 to the gubernatorial campaign opponent of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in 1970, John W. Dean III testified Friday.

Reports of such support from the White House had surfaced in the past and been denied.

The opponent, then-Gov. Albert Brewer, a Democrat has said previously he was not aware he received any funds from White House sources.

Dean touched on the contribution when Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., asked him if Wallace was on the White House list of political enemies.

Dean said he didn't know, but said he did know Kalmbach had provided the money. Kalmbach formerly was Nixon's private attorney, was a fund-raiser in 1968 and 1972 presidential campaigns, and according to recent testimony, raised hush money for Watergate break-in figures.

Wallace beat incumbent Brewer in the 1970 Democratic primary and was actively seeking the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972 until he was shot and crippled May 15, 1972.

W. German Mark Revalued; Dollar Has Worst Day Ever

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany revalued its mark upward 5.5 per cent against seven European currencies Friday and the dollar had its worst day ever in Germany and Switzerland.

The dollar fell more than 2 per cent in Frankfurt and almost 3 per cent in Zurich for its biggest declines ever in these two key monetary markets.

The U.S. currency collapsed to record low closings of 2.4250 German marks in Frankfurt and 2.94 Swiss francs in Zurich.

Friday was characterized by monetary uncertainty that cast in doubt the future of efforts so far this year to restore stability.

While the dollar was little changed or slightly improved elsewhere in Europe in late trading, its drastic drop in Frankfurt and Zurich tightened the pinch on U.S. tourists, GIs and other Americans in Germany and Switzerland.

The immediate effect of the dollar decline was mixed.

It was a further blow to confidence in the dollar, added to monetary instability and increased the cost of maintaining U.S. troops in Germany.

But at the same time observers said it made U.S. exports cheaper and easier to sell in Germany, an effect that should help improve America's troubled balance of trade.

It also makes German exports to America costlier and harder to sell, possibly further aiding America's trade balance by discouraging American purchases of such German products as Volkswagens.

The dollar's recent sharp decline has been attributed to disappointing U.S. trade figures, Watergate and U.S. inflation.

U.S Security Losses Hit $50 Billion Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — The volume of stolen, missing or lost securities in the United States has reached the $50-billion point, a Senate investigating subcommittee was told Friday.

Various senators and the witness, W. Henry du Pont criticized the financial community for apathy over the problem.

Du Pont, chairman of the board of Securities Validation Corp., testified before Sen. Henry M. Jackson's Permanent Government Operations Subcommittee on investigations.

The panel, reopening hearings on traffic in stolen and counterfeit securities, plans to call witnesses on international stolen-stock manipulations after the July 4 holiday recess.

The committee will also look at a case study of such manipulations and conclude with testimony by unnamed "major criminal figures" and representatives from federal regulatory and law-enforcement agencies and the financial community.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

One reads with consternation the continuing hassle over the rescue operations of the Lincoln Fire Department. Seeking to find an answer to emergency human needs throughout the county, Lancaster County commissioners commissioned John Luebs to study the situation.

Among many other things, Luebs came up with both praise and criticism of the Fire Department's rescuator operation. This results in consternation because it is the first time in all the years of operation of this system that we have heard any criticism of the unit.

Quite understandably, the Fire Department under Chief Dallas Johnson and Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf has taken considerable issue with the Luebs report. Again, if there is one thing the city has taken pride in, it has been its Fire Department.

We should, before going any further, explain that the Luebs report has little to do with fire-fighting in Lincoln and the Lincoln department is not criticized for any of its work in its primary area of responsibility.

Then, it should be pointed out that the Fire Department is in the rescue business for one simple reason — nobody else is in the business. It is like the cat that won't come down from the tree.

Finally, the Fire Department is the only place the cat-owner can go. Rescuing cats from trees is not the job of the Fire Department but even yet today it still will respond to such a call because it knows the caller has nowhere else to turn.

The reason for this explanation is to help everyone understand why the rescue operation is not perfect. There are communication problems in the operation, which includes the local ambulance services and the Bryan Memorial Mobile Heart Team.

There are a few other problems, too, and some of those that Luebs pointed out undoubtedly have some validity. There is not a fireman from Johnson on down who would say that the department's operation is without error at all times.

But we think it is a mistake to dwell upon this and we think that Luebs, in his criticism, left something to be desired. His criticism often lacks any appearance of objectivity, often seems to lack substance and often seems to lack supporting evidence.

He speaks of confusion at the scene of emergencies but is there not bound to be an appearance of this? With a rescue unit from the Fire Department probably first on the scene, then comes the police, probably an ambulance and often the Bryan heart unit.

Their order of appearance at the scene is unimportant; what counts is that at least four emergency units with two to four people each may be at the scene almost simultaneously.

This may well appear to be chaotic but it is not necessarily so. And the only solution to this would be to establish a single rescue operation through the Fire Department, Bryan Memorial, the Police Department or the ambulance companies.

And the solution would appear to be most impractical in view of the logistics involved and the resulting cost. The Fire Department operation is one the taxpayers get virtually free, something extra the department does because of its unique physical ability to do it.

In all, the department has done an outstanding job and we are confident it has saved many lives. We know the rescue operation could be improved, just as anything in this world can always be improved, but the emphasis richly deserves to be placed on its accomplishments, not its occasional and insignificant mistakes.

PHYLLIS BATTELLE

A Maxi Response To A Microwave

NEW YORK — Last fall when we first contemplated trying out a microwave oven, gourmet chef Felipe Fojas-Lombardi predicted I'd probably only use it as an accessory to the conventional oven.

"Of course," he conceded, gourmet chef-like, "you will find it is worth its weight (about 50 pounds) when you want to melt butter without burning it, or heat cognac for your flaming dishes, or warm up your quiches at the last moment."

Being neither a good quiche nor pyromaniacal cook, I asked what about the four-minute baked potatoes and the 30-second hotdogs I'd read about in the ads?

"Oh well, of course," said Felipe cheerfully, "if you like that sort of thing, a microwave does it."

So we are now into our seventh month of experimenting with microwaving, and I can say unequivocally that here is an appliance that separates the bachelor chefs from the working mothers.

It makes an excellent Bechamel sauce in 5 mins., 30 secs., though probably not up to Ritz standards.

The four-minute baked potato lacks that crusty skin that marks the one-hour Idaho — but it's on the table almost before the kids can bleat doggone-it-they're-starved.

It won't broil steaks and tends to toughen meats that tenderize only through long simmering. But dozens of other meat, poultry and fish dishes are so quick and so succulent when cooked by microwaves that we no longer invest in costly porterhouse.

And our family's special favorites — Oriental dishes such as sukiyaki, sweet-sour shrimp, and the chow meins — emerge from the microwave with the vegetables so crisp and colorful that we have abandoned all use of our wok.

Succulence aside, however, the microwave becomes an addiction to a working mother for really rudimentary reasons. Because the oven heats the food, but not the plates on which it is cooked, sensible children can safely use it.

When I'll be home late, I leave soup in a plastic bowl for my soup-loving son to shove in the oven for 90 seconds on the timer. He can heat up leftovers (spaghetti, stew) in two or three minutes, right from the refrigerator. Given 45 seconds, yesterday's pancake tastes better than the original.

The handiness doesn't end with food preparation. Last winter, I used the oven to warm compresses — spread washcloth with pungent salve, double over, pop among the microwaves for a minute.

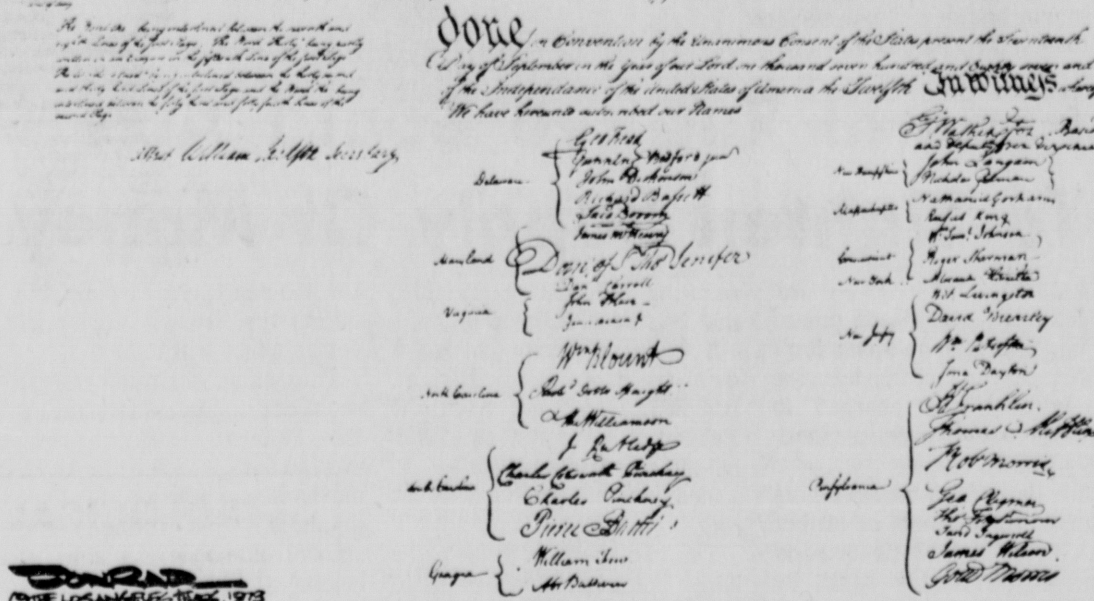

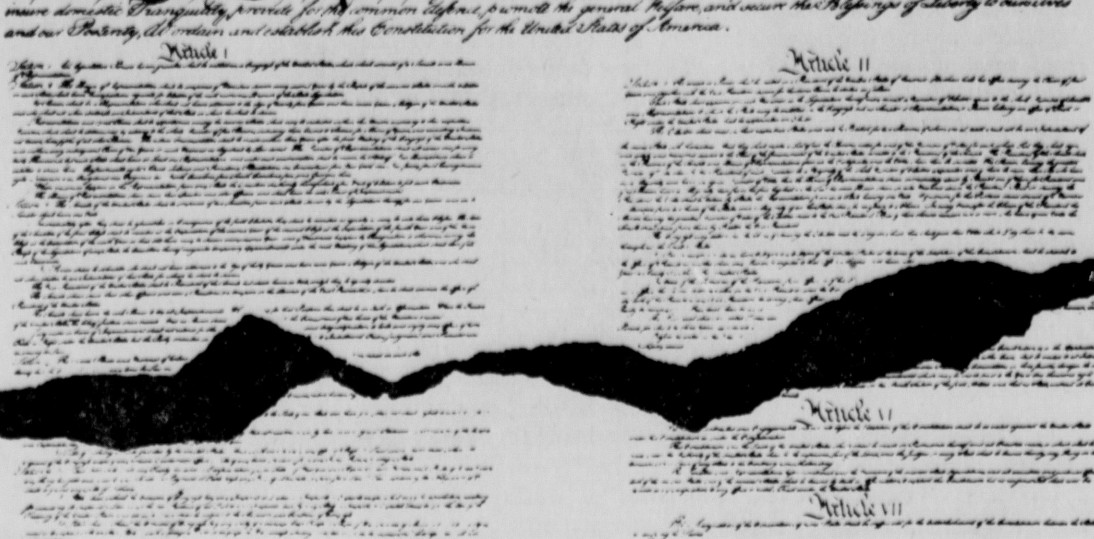

Like a kid with a crazy toy, I keep experimenting with this space age invention, and finding crazy new uses... drying flowers and papier mache; warming chilled cat food; pre-shrinking fabrics; softening old glue and hardened clay; steaming labels off jars and stamps off envelopes.

When our dog got hold of a page of my column and dragged it through her water dish, I put it in the microwave. The water dried in 90 seconds; the saliva took 30 seconds longer.

White House 'Enemies List'

We the People

A Small Part Of The Plot

It is becoming evident as the Watergate story unfolds that the importance of the actual break-in of Democratic National Committee headquarters last year is being dwarfed by other findings.

That "third rate burglary", as it was first described by the White House, its planning and who is implicated in its coverup, were intended to be and thus far have been the focal points of senatorial inquiry. What part the President had in it is at the very center.

But let's assume that John Dean's testimony implicating the President in the Watergate coverup in the end fails to impress the Senate select panel and later on the courts, and President Nixon succeeds in removing the Watergate stain from his vest. Even so, the President will still not be clean; other blotches will remain — spilled there if not by Nixon himself, at least by the people he permitted to surround him.

There is the matter of the juvenile "political enemies list," which has given liberal society a whole new status symbol and the revelation of which should embarrass the White House if it is capable of embarrassment. The list would be a laughable matter if it weren't for the fact that the White House intended to use it for revenge against those listed. As Dean wrote, the purpose was to use "the available federal machinery to screw our political enemies."

Seemingly the list was part and parcel of the White House mode of operation in political matters and presidential involvement in it hasn't been denied.

The list smacks of what Sen. Ervin, among others, has referred to as "Gestapo-like tactics." But even the list and what it implies is not as bad as another Gestapo-like tactic that Sen. Ervin warned about some weeks prior to the public hearings. And that is the domestic intelligence gathering plan conceived long before Watergate was targeted — a plan that was approved by the President himself.

Containing elements Ervin describes as patently illegal and unconstitutional, the plan contemplated bugging and burglary and other clandestine practices on a wide-spread scale. If that doesn't shock the American people into realization of what the White House mentality was and apparently still is (attempts to influence the Senate committee and undermine witnesses), nothing will. When all these pieces of the puzzle are fit into place, the June 17, 1972, break-in of the Democratic headquarters at the Watergate will pale into insignificance.

Commission On Vacation?

The City-County Planning Commission this week recommended denial of zoning for a major shopping center at 27th and Old Cheney Road. It was the third denial recommendation issued by the planning commission on shopping center applications in three months.

For the moment, however, we're not concerned with the merits of the various plans, but with how a final decision was finally reached by the commission on the 27th and Old Cheney Road proposal.

The original vote on the Ericson Development Co. application was 4-1 to deny. Five votes are needed for a decision. To enable the petition to move ahead to the City Council, Commissioner Jerome Warner changed his vote from aye to nay to reach the 5-0 vote. One planning commissioner abstained from voting and three were absent.

This would not be so bad if it were not for the fact that last week the commission was unable to act on three matters for lack of the necessary five negative or affirmative votes for a recommendation. Those items had been forwarded from the previous meeting when a decision could not be reached. And this week the commission was likewise unable to reach a decision on two of those three matters.

We realize that summer vacations have made a dent in attendance at commission meetings and vacation schedules have to be taken into account. Nor are we suggesting that the commission as a whole has not been an interested, attentive, responsible group over the years.

But if the situation continues where only the barest quorum is in attendance from meeting to meeting and enough votes cannot be obtained to reach a decision — thereby postponing applications and conceivably working hardships on people who must do business with the city — something will have to be worked out.

TOM WICKER

Enemies Of The People

CHICAGO — I have had a mixed reaction to being named on a long "master list" of enemies of Richard Nixon and his administration, and on another list of "less than 20" particular enemies that John Dean forwarded on Sept. 14, 1971, to an aide of H. R. Haldeman.

My first emotion was plain indignation. Like most of the American people, I tend — probably too much so in any case — to identify the president with the nation, hence with its people. I know I am not an enemy of the nation or of the people, and I resent any such suggestion.

But I also felt a flash of fear. I have relatives, children who could be hurt; like anyone else, I have human flaws that clever investigators might exploit, and a reasonably good name of which I am jealous.

But natural indignation and ignoble fear quickly faded in a kind of puzzlement. I would never have expected the Nixon administration to list me as a friend, nor do I want any administration to do so. But I had always thought that political conflict was in the nature of "agreeing to disagree" — that no matter how bitter and vigorously expressed their political differences might become, political opponents could maintain a civil relationship and be mutually respectful at least of the rights and integrity of the other.

In his last years in office, for example, President Johnson would have had every reason — if he thought about it at all — to be strongly resentful of my expressed attitude on his conduct of the war in Vietnam. But it never occurred to me then that I or anyone would be placed by him on a list of "enemies" to "screw" through tax investigation or other abuses of governmental power.

Nor do I believe the Johnson administration did any such thing; the Nixon administration's determination to "get" or "screw" political opponents, even potential opponents, by any means illegal or otherwise, seems to me far beyond any reasonable view of the nature of democracy, or any generally accepted political practice.

Even so, I was also amazed in reading the "master list," the smaller Dean list, and a "priority" list of enemies prepared by Charles Colson, another Nixon aide, to discover how ludicrous all this listing was. Not that most of the people on the lists are not estimable; but what were these important men doing, in their high offices, taking time out from the great national affairs to put down the names of movie stars, reporters, businessmen, political contributors, and the like, as "enemies" demanding surreptitious counterattack? From the most powerful institution in the world, did these petty men have nothing better to do than to gaze, with fear and paranoia, at outspoken citizens, and call them "enemies" for being so?

In fact, the comic-opera aspects of the "enemies" lists tempted me to the kind of flippancy and derision that the witty Ken Galbraith — himself on the "master list" — recently recommended as the best way to deal with the Nixon administration. All sorts of wisecracks suggest themselves — "the king's honors list," for example — but the truth is that however ludicrous they may be, these lists are not really funny.

They are sad. They are sad because they show that even great power could not make of Nixon and his aides anything but small and fearful men. They are sad because they disclose a great

ALVIN A. COFFEY

They Had A Dream

The discovery of gold at Sutter's Creek in 1849 set thousands of fortune hunters on the trail for California. They came from every hamlet, from every walk of life, lured on by dreams of gold. In a decade, 300,000 men crossed the continent to stake their claims.

Many of those "forty-niners" were Negroes. Some of them were free men. But others, like Alvin A. Coffey, were brought West to work the gold fields as slaves.

Born in Mason County, Ky., in 1822, Coffey moved West with his master who settled in Missouri. When news of the gold strike reached Missouri, Coffey and his master joined a wagon train in St. Louis and headed for California.

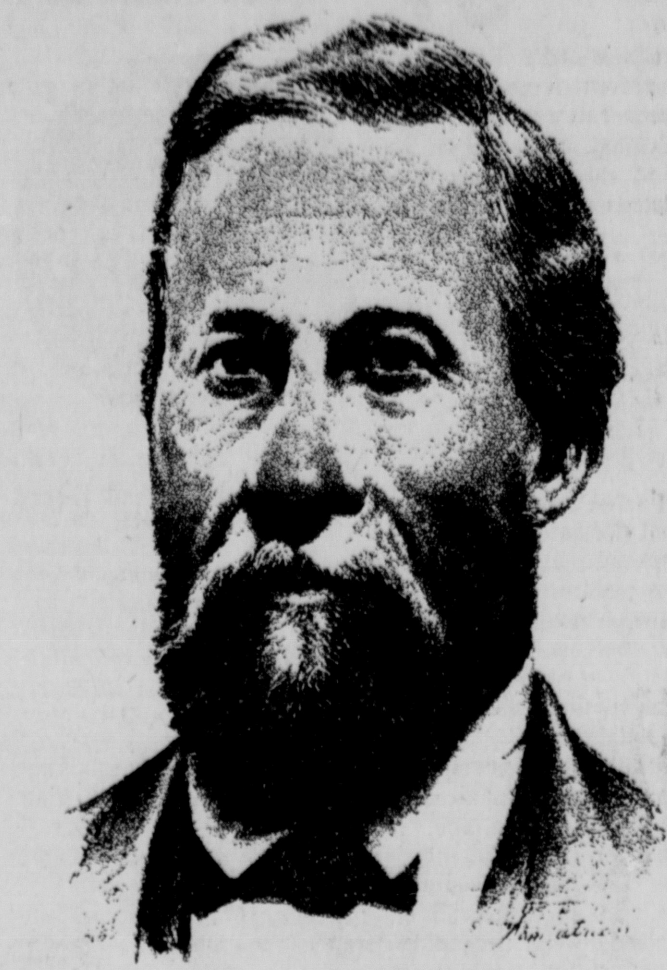

The young Negro hoped he could earn his and his family's freedom in the rich gold fields of California. Eventually he did.

The party, consisting of about 20 ox-drawn wagons and some 80 men, departed April 2, 1849, and drove day and night to escape an outbreak of cholera which had struck St. Louis.

They arrived in Fort Laramie, Wyo., on June 16, losing only one man to the dread disease, but traversing a trail littered with the carcasses of dead oxen and abandoned wagons of others less fortunate.

Moving on, they crossed the mountains into the Sacramento Valley and reached Redding Springs on Oct. 13, 1849. Two days later they were hard at work.

"We went to dry-digging mining," Coffey later recounted. "We dug and dug till the first of November." The weather was severe and the men had poor shelter and very little food.

"At night it commenced raining, and rained and snowed pretty much all winter," Coffey later wrote. "We had a tent but it barely kept us all dry."

The men, numbering about 12 in his camp, built a cabin and bought 100 pounds of bear meat from a hunter to tide them over until spring.

Coffey and his master remained about a year. The slave had been promised his freedom for $1,000, so he worked his master's claim by day, and by night he cobbled the other miners' shoes to earn the price of his freedom.

He had amassed half the stipulated amount when his master confiscated his money, returned to Missouri and sold Coffey to another man.

Coffey's new master agreed to allow him to return to the gold fields, and this time he fared better. He worked in the Shasta Mines from 1854 to 1857 and earned enough to free himself and his family.

Coffey established a homestead near Red Bluff, Calif., and farmed it for many years. His five sons also became prosperous farmers there. Coffey died Oct. 2, 1902, and was buried at Oak Hill Cemetery in Red Bluff.

Courtland, Kans. Wasn't it Harry Truman who said: "Never trust the Russians"? I want peace as much as anyone else, but peace means different things to different people and I don't think there will be peace in Brezhnev's heart until they take over this country as they said they would.

When he arrived here, he put his arms in the air over his head and with his clasped hands shaking to the people along the way. That was a signal to those communists waiting for him that at last he was in this country.

He said he liked it here. With liquor in Nixon's hand and his head swimming with power, I think Brezhnev could have anything.

I would like to ask Nixon if the Russians had given up their plans for this country. The Russians never keep an agreement unless it is to their advantage.

Priorities

I read in The Star about the hoopla and expense being expended on Lincoln's "adult" book stores. The wares sold by these businesses are bought by people who are anything but adult and are usually read by them in solitude.

A few pages away from that item was the story and accompanying photographs about women who wore swim suits to an auto race where they were publicly evaluated and rated.

It seems to me that our priorities are out of order when paper and celluloid images are the subject of such furor while real persons, even children, can be displayed and ogled and debased before a cheering mob with no twinge of society's collective conscience.

Picnic Fun

Children living on farms were so far apart that each family had to make up its own fun and games. Sometimes I had to take care of my little sister. If her doll was sick, I had to be the doctor, or maybe it was a tea party. Sometimes Mother let us spread a clean cloth made from a Gooch's flour sack on the green grass by a dusty road and have a lunch of sliced apples, fresh bread spread with butter I had churned and strawberry jam, the berries for which I had picked. I would watch the squirrels and rabbits, and our dog was so comfortable, he gave no chase. Such peaceful hours, but we did not realize it then.

My own children had many picnics along some river bank where we feasted on crisp fried fish and other good things. We played games, gathered unusual rocks, wildflowers and in a jar of water, pollywogs swam.

The picnic of all was the night we built a fire in a nest of rocks in our favored woods. We were cooking weiners on long sticks held over the fire, and the smell was mouth-watering. We laughed and talked. With our flashlight, we found the buns in our basket. There were sounds in the darkness, for deer and coyotes were often seen, but this sound kept coming closer. We threw rocks aimlessly. Now, just beyond the flickering fire, our rocks gave no pause to this visitor. The black and white invited guest came into the light, and we ran, stumbling in the darkness, over a fence and nearly home. In the safety of our porch, we doubled up in laughter at how one little skunk had busted up our picnic. No more night adventures in "them thar woods."

Indian Students

This is an appeal on behalf of one or more of the 24 Indian students who are enrolled at the University of Nebraska. These students are hanging on by their teeth, trying to meet social, scholastic and financial pressures to get their college education. They have come from homes which are absolutely unable to help with the finances. Wouldn't we all want to see them better themselves or be able to help them?

Help me to get an organization started whereby we may ease the financial burden. Give them a fair chance to compete in our society and to reach their maximum goals.

Could we as an interested group collectively sponsor one or more of these students by pledging a dollar, two or three dollars or a larger amount? It could mean the difference as to whether they can continue or not. How many of us care to help?

With college summer sessions commencing, it might be interesting to know that from a four-state area, there are government funds to help only 16 students. Surely there are more than four Nebraska Indians who would like to go to the summer sessions, but many will not be able unless we can give some help.

If we can get organized this summer, maybe by fall we can offer a scholarship, besides giving some help to the most destitute of this small group of Indian students.

AGNES VICKERS

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer
Lancaster District Judge Dale Fahrbruch Friday denied a request for a temporary restraining order which would have prevented cancellation of a contract between the Telecommunications Bureau of the State of Nebraska and Nebraska Consolidated Communications Corp.

After a more than four-hour-long hearing Friday, Judge Fahrbruch held that there would be no irreparable damage resulting from failure to grant the temporary order sought by N-Triple-C in a suit filed earlier this week.

N-Triple-C, in challenging the cancellation of the contract, had sought temporary and permanent orders enjoining the defendants from taking any action to cancel the contract, from interfering in any way with the plaintiff's equipment and from replacing the State Telecommunications System with services or facilities of the Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Judge Fahrbruch, in handing down his ruling, said that if defendant Gustave Lieske, director of Administrative Services for the State of Nebraska, has no authority to cancel the contract, any action he would take would be void.

Otherwise, the court said, if Lieske does have that authority, which is challenged by the petitioners, then he would have the right on the behalf of the State of Nebraska which was not named as a party in the action and was one of the reasons cited by the defendants for dismissal of the action.

Judge Fahrbruch reserved ruling on a motion to dismiss made by attorneys for Lieske and LT&T, and a motion on Lieske's special appearance.

Donn Davis, attorney for N-Triple-C, contended at the hearing that the contract was not involved at that hearing but the qualification and ability of Lieske to cancel the agreement with N-Triple-C and enter into agreements with LT&T, contended that the State of Nebraska, which was not named as a party in the action, must be a party in order to determine whether the contract is in effect or not.

Assistant Attorney General Harold Mosher argued that the contract is an issue in the suit and contended that there was no showing of irreparable damage to the plaintiff.

He said the action followed the Jan. 29 report of Gov. J.J. Exon which stated that bids for the telecommunications system should be rejected and the contract should be cancelled.

Lieske said that he had authorized LT&T to install additional lines between Lincoln and Omaha but had not ordered any other additional services from LT&T.

"I authorized LT&T to deal directly with the state agencies," he said, noting that the Lincoln to Omaha line was the only authorization he had given for installation of equipment.

N-Triple-C charges that Lieske is without actual or implied authority to cancel the contract and has conspired with LT&T to coerce state agencies and subdivisions into contracting for communication facilities only from LT&T and to prohibit such agencies from obtaining facilities or leasing equipment from the plaintiff.

Directory Eyes State Agencies For Alcoholism

The Nebraska Division on Alcoholism has announced publication of a 52-page directory of alcoholism resources in the state.

The first edition of "Focus on Alcoholism" contains descriptive material on more than 80 agencies in Nebraska — treatment centers, halfway houses, councils on alcoholism, traffic safety programs, community alcoholism programs, special and affiliated programs.

The publication also includes a review of the Nebraska Alcoholism Program, the result of the division's Comprehensive State Plan for Prevention, Intervention and Control of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

Construction is expected to begin soon and the building is to be completed by fall of 1974.

Court Interprets Speedy Trial Act

The Nebraska Supreme Court Friday put a strict interpretation upon a law enacted two years ago by the legislature to guarantee persons their constitutional right to a speedy trial.

The law provides that every person charged with a crime should go to trial within six months of the filing of the charges or have the case dismissed, unless good reasons can be found for granting extensions of the trial date.

In upholding Friday the Scotts Bluff County District Court convictions of two men for the 1971 attempted burglary of a Scottsbluff supermarket, the Supreme Court said a trial is not necessarily required any earlier than six months.

The pair, Linnie Norman and Charles Watkins, were charged with the May 16, 1971 attempted burglary but were not tried and found guilty until December 1971.

They claimed in their appeal that the convictions should be overturned because of the 1971 law.

However, the Supreme Court, in an opinion by Chief Justice Paul White was without apparent dissent, noted it has last fall laid down procedural guidelines to implement the 1971 law.

At that time, more stringent requirements for granting extensions were required by the court.

White's opinion noted the information in the Watkins case was filed June 4, 1971 in the district court and the trial concluded Dec. 3, just less than six months later.

Attorneys for Watkins and Norman claim the trials could have been held earlier had the court given precedence to criminal cases.

But the high court said there is nothing in the 1971 law which requires such favored attention for criminal actions.

"The legislative intent is clear," said White. "The standard set and required is a time period of six months. There is no right of discharge granted at any time short of the six months period."

Also rejected were claims that a $5,000 bail set for Watkins was excessive.

In other decisions Friday, the court:

— Affirmed a Box Butte County District Court decision which denied Mary Ann Riss' attempt to win custody of the two children in a divorce case involving her husband, Clinton. He was granted custody.

— Affirmed a Dodge County District Court divorce ruling in which Jerry McGee had unsuccessfully sought to have child support payments reduced. The high court directed that the payments be suspended.

— Agreed with the one year prison sentence moved out to Gerald Heckathorn by the Gage County District Court after he was convicted of petit larceny.

— Modified a Douglas County District Court decision in a case involving Gilda and Manfred Bieck. The high court upheld the divorce but ordered new proceedings on property division, alimony, child custody and support, and visitation rights.

— Modified a case involving a suit in Scotts Bluff County District Court by the Lantieri Corp. against Magnolia Homes Manufacturing Corp., a mobile home contractor, and the Donald Lynch contracting Co., local dealer of a Lantieri soil compaction product. The high court upheld a $4,125 judgment in favor of Magnolia but said it should be jointly for Lynch and Magnolia instead of Magnolia alone. The high court also overruled a lower court decision releasing Donald Lynch and his firm from liability in the case, which involved a claim the product did not work as advertised.

— Refused to disturb the Douglas County District Court convictions of Leslie Fitzgerald and Michael Fitzmaurice for possession with intent to deliver amphetamines. They had claimed a plea bargain was violated.

— Overturned a Dodge County District Court ruling in favor of Julie Brown and against Marcella Passch in a suit brought by Passch which claimed the flow of water across her land had been obstructed by Brown. The high court ordered further proceedings.

— Ordered new proceedings in a Frontier County District Court case involving a switch of land from Frontier County school districts 91 and 120 to District 199 in Red Willow County. The lower court had dismissed an appeal objecting to the action.

— Upheld the Sarpy County District Court conviction of Michael Coleman for burglary.

— Refused to modify a three year prison term given Thomas Keyser by the Colfax County District Court after he was convicted of forgery.

— Affirmed the Colfax County District Court ruling which dissolved a suit by County Attorney Jon Tomek challenging reorganization of County School District No. 123. Portions of other districts were added to the district.

— Agreed with a Cherry County District Court ruling dismissing a suit which had contended that School District No. 6 did not legally exist.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY: Age Doesn't Slow Lively Widow's Pace

By ROBERT PETERSON
Is old age a time for slowing down? Not necessarily. Some may find their health necessitates a slower pace. But those who are still strong and vigorous can turn the chapter to a new life more worthwhile in some respects than the one lived previously.

Take the case of one of my readers, Mrs. Gertrude Wiltsee. When she was widowed at age 64, it would have been easy for her to sit back, feel sorry for herself and withdraw from an active life.

Instead, she joined the Red Cross Canteen and began working as a volunteer in duties that frequently took her to flood and tornado disaster areas in states adjoining her native Indiana.

At 70 she took her first swimming lessons and passed both beginners and advanced courses. Says she, "I won't win any medals, but if I'm ever dropped into the water I'll know what to do."

Three years ago she took her first trip to the Holy Land and was so thrilled by the spiritual atmosphere of Biblical places that she has returned every year since then.

Today at age 78 she's still an active volunteer with the Red Cross, and is currently helping to man the blood bank programs which operate in outlying communities and in penal institutions where prisoners are invited to give blood.

The Red Cross in every community offers a host of opportunities, and Mrs. Wiltsee's active engagement in the splendid organization, and in life in general, should inspire other widows to rise from their lethargy and do likewise.

Meet Star Carrier Greg Loy

Greg Loy of Clatonia enjoys a wide variety of sports but is best known for his prowess in wrestling.

A first place winner in two wrestling tournaments, the eighth grader is expected to do equally well—if not better—after he enters high school.

Greg is also a highly successful businessman who has substantially increased his route since he became a carrier salesman for The Lincoln Star. Praised for his early and dependable service, Greg is also noted for his fine personality and mature attitude toward his job.

A student at Wilber Elementary School, Greg plays the French horn in the junior high band and earned first chair honors at the Humboldt School Music Festival.

Those who love to travel and have plenty of time should take advantage of the Greyhound Lines' special this summer. They're offering an Ameripass Program which gives one 30 days of unlimited travel for just $149. This covers travel throughout the United States and Canada, and includes special discounts on hotels, auto rentals, and other travel services. For an extra $50, the package is good for 60 days. The Ameripass is also honored by nearly 100 intercity bus lines in the United States and Canada.

Don't dismiss bus travel just because it happens to be the cheapest form of transportation. Modern buses offer a level of riding comfort comparable to that of coasting along in a private chauffeured limousine. What's more, most buses these days have rest room facilities. And of course, everyone knows that when you go by bus you can see the countryside and cities far better than when traveling by train or plane.

Here's a note from a retired high school principal who feels life begins at 65. "Since passing the big milestone I'm enjoying life more than ever. I'm trying my hand at oil painting and short story writing. I read all the best-sellers which I get at the library, and I've started a shell collection. My wife is gone, but I keep a neat house. I've learned to play hymns on the piano, and recently bought a typewriter for $25 at an auction and I'm learning to touch-typewrite. I'm hoping to write the story of my life for my grandchildren. O yes," he concluded, "I almost forgot to say I've got arthritis of the spine, a heart murmur, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure."

Service Dependable

In his spare time, Greg likes to go fishing, builds models and enjoys working on motors.

His parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Glenn Loy, feel that the paper route has been especially helpful in teaching their son how to handle money and think that other boys may benefit also from this type of work.

Anderson Says Staff Turnover At Hastings Center Not Unusual

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer
State Institutions Director Dr. Jack Anderson said Friday that the turnover rate among professional staff, particularly psychiatrists, at the Hastings Regional Center is not unusual when the demand for psychiatrists is considered.

"It's a seller's market when there are only about 20,000 psychiatrists in the country and the demand is so much greater," Anderson said.

Anderson's remarks were solicited in reply to charges by a former psychologist at Hastings who said that the superintendent there had created an "exodus" of competent personnel in his attempts to "dominate" the south-central Nebraska mental health practice.

Dr. Michael Morra, who was fired for alleged "sexual improprieties" with two patients in Kansas, alleged that twelve professional staff members have resigned in the ten months that Dr. Charles Landgraf has headed the Hastings Regional Center.

Anderson said that it is ridiculous to assume that there is a cause-effect relationship between Landgraf's accepting the post and the resignations.

Anderson acknowledged that some had left over differences with the new administration, but he said that was "seldom true."

By nature, he said, psychiatrists have a tendency to move around.

Some leave to go into private practice, he said; others join the staffs of the newer mental health clinics where they are full of the restrictions on outside practice.

"There have been people coming and going at all the state hospitals," he said. "The fact that they leave when a new administration takes over doesn't always mean that it's due to some disagreement. Some had planned to leave before Dr. Landgraf took over."

Currently, he said, there are two full-time clinical psychiatrists on the Hastings staff with an additional part-time staff member. One more psychiatrist would give Hastings a "good" staff-patient ratio; two more would mean a better quality of out-patient services, he said.

"We're vigorously recruiting, and we're scoring some hits. We have one coming in July, another in September, a part-time psychiatrist in September and hopefully another one before the year is out," he said.

People who visit the Hastings Regional Center find the programs there "always a pleasant surprise," Anderson said. The Hastings center, he said, has the best record in the state for successful placement of patients in communities.

Anderson said any other superintendent would have given Morra "a very hard look" in light of Morra's troubles in Kansas.

Millions Sought For River Mall Plans In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — The Metropolitan Area Planning Agency board has been presented spending proposals totaling $11.7 million for river-front development late this year and until July next year.

Charles Shafer of the Riverfront technical staff told the board 64% of the total is for construction work and 36% is for planning.

The City of Omaha would provide most of $2,649 million in proposed local funds. The federal government is being asked to provide $7.8 million for the period Nov. 1 to June 30.

Contract Approved For NPPD Center At York

Columbus (AP) — An earthwork, underground pipe and concrete contract for the proposed Nebraska Public Power District operations center at York has been approved by the NPPD Board of Directors.

At the recommendation of management, the NPPD board Thursday accepted the bid of the Central Sand and Gravel Co. of Columbus at a cost of $618,813 which was approximately $100,000 below the engineer's estimate.

The new structure, consisting of 158,000 square feet, will be built on a 70-acre plot located on the south edge of Highway 34 just northwest of the York city limits. The property was acquired earlier from the Epworth Village Foundation for $125,000.

Consolidated in the new structure will be NPPD operations personnel currently being housed in four locations in York. The new building will be headquarters for supervisory personnel for the district-wide operations, the operations engineer, communications department, transportation, substation personnel, the warehouse and the York district operations and warehousing facilities.

In 1972, the NPPD board announced plans to locate the operations center at York and area substation crew centers in other strategic parts of the state. NPPD said the purpose of the relocation was to place operating personnel closer to the major concentrations of transmission and substation facilities to increase the efficiency of normal maintenance functions and emergency service restoration.

Location Of Spur OK'd By NPPD

Columbus (AP) — Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) directors Friday approved location of a railroad spur from Wallace to the Gerald Gentleman power plant adjacent to highway 25.

NPPD said the route was chosen over two others because area residents had indicated that locating the track east of the highway would create the fewest problems.

At a public meeting in Wallace last week, area ranchers and townspeople noted that other proposed paths for the 18 miles of track could separate some ranch land and interfere with irrigation systems, it was reported.

The selected route would parallel Highway 25 from the Burlington Northern line at Wallace, north to the plant site which is south of the Suberland Reservoir.

The spur is needed to bring construction materials and coal to the plant, NPPD said.

The line is expected to cost $4.1 million, NPPD reported. Project manager Tony Davis said the project must be completed by the Fall of 1974. Construction is expected to begin next spring, he said.

Riding Is Fun At Any Age

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

According to the 1972 Statistical Abstract of the United States, 16.1 million people are actively involved in the sport of horseback riding. This figure is up considerably from ten years previous when riding had not yet become the popular pastime it is today.

That there has been a tremendous increase in the number of riders and mounts during the past decade is substantiated by Lancaster County Extension Agent, Cyril Bish, who termed the 4-H Horse Project the "fastest growing project" in the state.

Bish noted that, in 1962, 2,319 Nebraska youngsters were enrolled in the project. By 1972, that figure had mushroomed to 5,094 — more than double the 1962 amount.

In Lancaster County, the enrollment figures quadrupled — from 78 in 1962, to 343 in 1972.

The benefits of horseback riding are many. It is an excellent form of exercise and relaxation, and it provides the individual the chance to see the out-of-doors leisurely, minus the intrusion of sputtering motors and gasoline fumes. As the oft-seen bumper sticker says, "Fight Pollution — Ride A Horse!"

Add to these, the less tangible benefit of learning to understand and communicate with another living creature, and you have a sport that's difficult to beat.

As is the case with any similar endeavor, the individual can learn to ride at virtually any age. However, according to Barbara Petersen, who has been teaching horsemanship for several years, it is advantageous to learn at as young an age as possible.

Ms. Petersen, who, with her husband, Lyle, raises and trains Arabian and part-Arabian horses on an acreage southeast of Waverly, has been riding for ten years, and giving lessons for five.

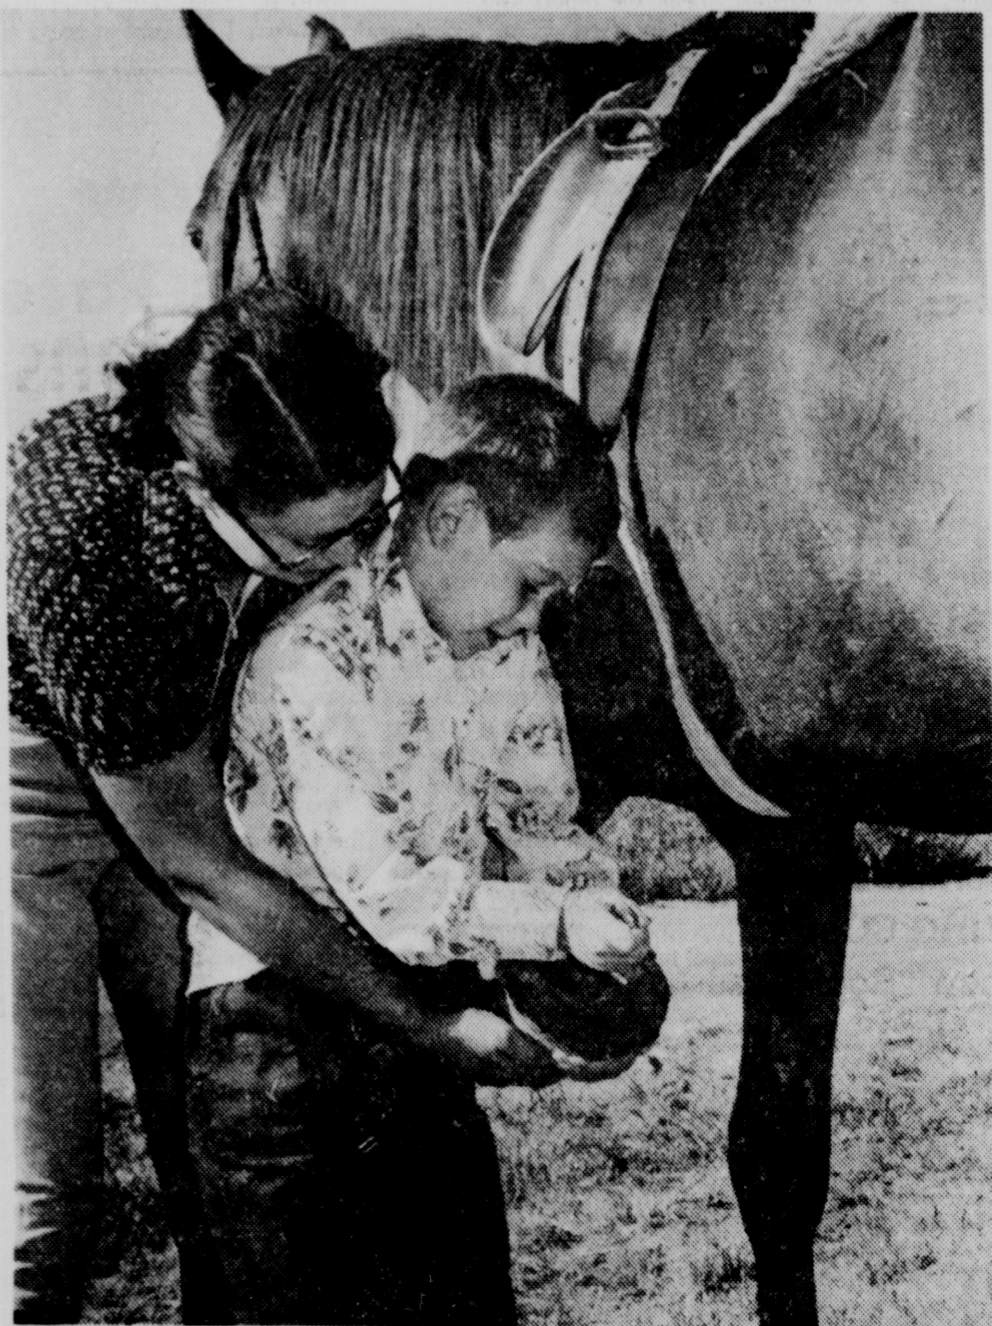

Graduating from the University of Nebraska with a bachelor's degree in animal science, Ms. Petersen also received an Instructor's Certificate from Meredith Manor School of Horsemanship in Waverly, W. Va.

In addition to her private and group lessons, she serves as leader of the 15-member "Equinauts" 4-H Club.

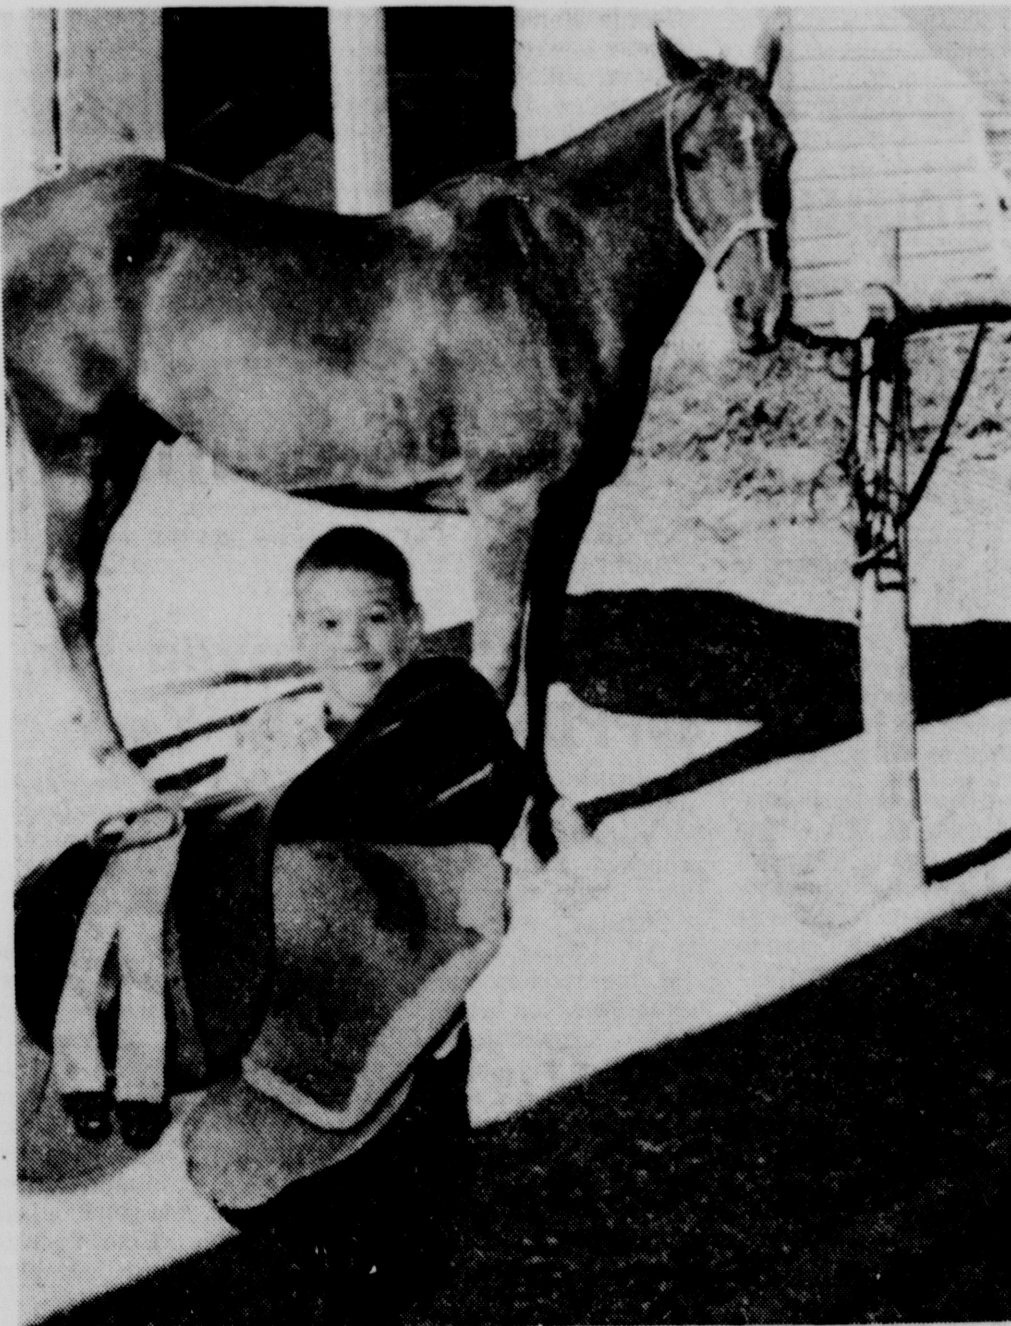

A great deal of her experience in teaching riding has been with children, and she has, on occasion, begun instructing youngsters at the early age of four years.

When dealing with youngsters inexperienced in riding, she said she likes to start them off without reins. This is accomplished through the use of a "longe line" — a lengthy, webbed rein that is attached to the horse's bridle.

Ms. Petersen, standing in the center of the riding arena, holds the end of the longe line, and the horse circles around her.

INSTRUCTOR . . . Barbara Petersen teaches Matthew Davis how to clean his mount's hooves.

THE LESSON OVER . . . Matthew returns saddle to the barn.

"Beginning the rider without the use of reins has a number of advantages," stated Ms. Petersen. Primary among them is the fact that, when the child doesn't have to be concerned with guiding the horse, he can concentrate on two very important basics — balance and position.

In addition, foregoing the reins does away with the possibility of the inexperienced rider incorrectly influencing the movements of the horse.

"When riding, you're not dealing with a machine," Ms. Petersen stated. "A living animal will respond to signals from the rider, and if the child makes a mistake with the reins, it can hurt or confuse the horse."

Of course, it is necessary to have a very dependable horse in order to use the longe line. "The horse is a very important factor, and not very many are suitable for tiny children."

During the elementary stages, most of the work is done at a walk, however Ms. Petersen observed that, in a very short time, the youngster is usually able to advance to maneuvers at a trot.

One of the methods she employs in order to develop the child's coordination and self-confidence, is having the youngster do simple exercises while on the horse. These involve moving the arms and body about while the horse is moving, as well as touching the horse.

"There are all sorts of things the child can do to get over his fear of what appears to him to be a great, huge animal."

Ms. Petersen prefers to begin riders in an English, as opposed to a Western saddle. The English saddle is not as cumbersome, and, as a result, it usually fits the young rider better than the Western saddle (especially since special, shorter stirrup leathers can be obtained for use with the former).

In addition, since the English saddle does not have a saddle horn, the youngster does not learn the bad habit of clinging to the saddle in order to stay on.

"I believe that, once you have learned to ride English, you can easily switch over to Western," she noted. "However learning Western may cause the rider to come to rely on the 'crutches' provided by the larger saddle."

There is more involved in horsemanship than simply riding, and Ms. Petersen makes sure that her pupils learn to lead, groom, and "tack up" (saddle and bridle) the horse whenever that is possible.

"The more a child works around a horse, the less afraid he or she will be," she said.

With regard to the matter of fear, she has found that the child's attitude is dependent, to a large degree, on that of his parents. "If the parent who brings the child out for lessons seems afraid of the horse, the child will probably be timid."

But this initial apprehension is usually fairly easily overcome by showing the child how quiet and dependable the horse is.

Youngsters have one definite point in their favor as far as learning to ride is concerned. "It's much easier to get a child to relax," she said. "Adults have been used to being their own locomotion for so long that they tend to be more tense."

"Also, the child, who is conditioned to putting faith in adults, tends to trust the instructor more than adults do," she added.

Can the very young child really learn to ride?

"They can't learn as many technical things as the older rider, however, they can be taught the basic factors that go into good horsemanship — confidence, balance and position," Ms. Petersen stated.

She usually likes to limit lessons to one-half hour in duration. This is because children's attention span is relatively short, and they tire easily — not to mention that, with a longer lesson, the horse frequently becomes bored and unresponsive.

"It is best to have half-hour lessons twice a week."

Although she believes that horseback riding is "the best thing in the world for a child if he or she wants to do it," she doesn't feel that every youngster should learn to ride.

"If you force a child to ride a horse, he isn't going to enjoy it, and he'll probably take it out on the horse."

However, for those who want to learn, riding is an excellent activity. "It is a good way to teach the child to control his body, and it is one sport in which the more physically agile child doesn't have that much of an advantage."

"I've seen several instances where a less coordinated youngster became a better rider than his more agile peer simply because he was more dedicated and worked harder at it," Ms. Petersen explained.

Women's Jobs Expand

Women are urged to train for nontraditional as well as traditional jobs since many of the job openings during the seventies will be in occupations where relatively few women have been employed in the past.

This advice is given in a publication "Careers for Women in the Seventies," prepared by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration.

As an illustration of non-traditional occupations, the publication states that in 1970 only 20% of the accountants were women, yet more than 31,000 openings in the field are expected to occur each year during the remainder of the decade.

Engineering and science technicians will be needed at a rate of 33,000 each year during the seventies. Only 11% of the 650,000 technicians employed in 1970 were women.

"In essence careers for women should not be any different from careers for men," the report states.

The highest predicted growth rate (39%) will be for jobs in the professional and technical category, where earnings are higher and promotional opportunities are greater.

Emerging occupations in the health field, such as physician's assistant and jobs in environmental protection are listed as areas women might wish to consider.

The skilled trades also offer good prospects for employment, the publication states. Women are underrepresented in these jobs, and the earnings are relatively high.

Specific occupations which will show an increased demand include marketing research worker, programmer, systems analyst, accountant, draftsman and medical laboratory technician.

The publication also shows what percentage of the employees in selected occupations in 1970 were women. It also shows projected annual openings in the occupations up to 1980.

Single copies of "Careers for Women in the Seventies" may be obtained free from the Women's Bureau, Employment Standards Administration, U.S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20210. Multiple copies are available at 35 cents each from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Swinging Privileges

DEAR ABBY: My husband told me he had met a girl he wanted me to share him with. I was shocked when he suggested I meet the girl. The three of us met. She is quite pretty, my age (30), and seems intelligent and serious.

She said: "I have a great capacity to love and so has John, and we feel that the more people we can touch with love during our lives, the better." Then she said: "I don't want marriage or a family because nothing in this world is permanent, and people change as they grow. I don't believe in deception, and unless I have your permission to love John, I will never see him again."

Meanwhile, John just sat there. I was amazed at my self-control. I told her I wouldn't consent to such an arrangement, but if John wanted her, I would give him a divorce.

John said he wanted six months to think it over. But while thinking it over he wanted to see her. I said I wouldn't live with him while he was seeing her, so he said he wouldn't see her. Somehow I believe this girl, but I'm not so sure about John. Help me.

JOHN'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You believe the girl, so if she said she wouldn't see John without your permission, and you said: "No dice," you don't have to worry about John's seeing her. But you do have to worry about being married to a man who wants swinging privileges.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a professional artist who paints only from life. He considers it unethical to copy from pictures or photographs as some so-called artists do, and therefore if he wishes to paint a landscape he must be out-of-doors at the actual scene.

Far too often, passersby will stand around as he works, making comments to each other. It's almost as if they think he is putting on a public performance. I realize that many people don't mean to be rude or annoying. Some even imagine they are flattering the artist by watching him, when, in fact, they are distracting and inhibiting him.

These same people would never glance over a composer's musical score as he worked or look over an author's shoulder as he wrote. Why haven't they the same respect for an artist?

The problem is how to handle these people without being rude or insulting. Perhaps just publishing this letter will help.

ARTIST'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Perhaps, but artists who work out-of-doors should realize that the out-of-doors belongs to everyone, and passersby cannot be blamed for showing normal curiosity.

DEAR ABBY: I work for an eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist and we have a sign in our waiting room which says, "Feel Free to Smoke . . . and Make the Doctor Rich."

That is far more effective than a "No Smoking" sign.

Council To Eye Proposal To Consolidate Agencies

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

An ordinance creating the Community Development Department proposed by Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf will be introduced to the City Council Monday.

The department would be an umbrella type agency bringing under one roof various city divisions now scattered around the city.

The department would help upgrade the city's older and lower income areas, including Clinton, Malone, Uni Place, Havelock and the near south side.

The ordinance, as drafted, also sets out the administrative tools to get the job done.

A department head would supervise the following four divisions, outlined by City Atty. Dick Wood:

- project planning and administration.
- housing and construction advisory services.
- equal opportunity.
- governmental liaison and human services projects administration.

Neighborhood Development

Wood said the project planning and administration division would supervise and plan for neighborhood development projects with the assistance of the planning department.

Lincoln will be eligible to receive federal funds for such projects under authorization of LB299 passed by the Legislature this session.

'Lincoln Is Good Place To Have Heart Attack'

The director of information at Bryan Memorial Hospital said Friday that John Luebs' statements on the efficiency of the Bryan mobile heart team "was off base."

Jim Gember told the Star, "Lincoln is one of the best places in the nation to have a heart attack."

The "quick response" system has revived more than 50% of the heart attack victims who collapsed and had seemingly died.

In a report to the Lancaster County Board, consultant Luebs had stated that few physicians will call the team in a heart emergency.

"You can't get the heart team without the Lincoln Fire Department. All that racket creates confusion—and then the police congestion, resulting in complete pandemonium," Luebs explained.

In response, Gember said "It is a community-wide effort which makes for the success of the team. The fire rescue service

Fireworks Not Affected By Fire Ban

The ban on open burning in western Nebraska does not apply to fireworks, the deputy state fire marshal, Myron Piening, said Friday.

However, all "open" burning has been restricted because of high fire danger in western Nebraska, according to the announcement by Fire Marshal Joe Pluta.

The ban applies west of U. S. 281, the north-south highway which runs through Grand Island and O'Neill.

The ban applies to all burning, including municipal dumps, Piening said. Burning can be done only under supervision and authority of the local fire department.

However, fireworks are not affected by the ban and may be shot off he explained.

The combination of dry weather and fields full of wheat awaiting harvest have combined to produce high fire danger, Piening said.

Rubber, Tin Dip

Enjoy eating the foods you choose while you lose excess ugly fat. X-11 Reducing Plan can help you slim down. X-11 is a tiny tablet easily swallowed, that combines ingredients to combat hunger, suppress appetite, supplement vitamins. No dangerous drugs. No strenuous exercise. Your money refunded by your druggist if you don't lose pounds — no questions asked.

The measure enables Nebraska communities to obtain such financing under the direction of local officials, instead of under a separate urban renewal authority.

The housing and construction division would involve the consulting function presently carried on by City Housing Administrator Carl Kopines' office.

The division would handle assistance programs, such as relocation services, plus expand the city's consulting services, Wood explained.

Financial Advice

Eventually, the division could offer financial advice to small businessmen and home owners.

The bill which will be introduced to city lawmakers on first reading Monday, also proposes to house Human Rights Officer Gerald Henderson's office in an equal opportunity division.

However, the Human Rights Commission is recommending that the Human Rights Officer — and the commission — remain independent.

Wood pointed out that he included the office in the proposed ordinance at the direction of the mayor and City Council.

Public Hearing Set

Discussion of this point is likely Monday since the council is slated to hold a public hearing on a comprehensive civil rights law proposed by the Human Rights Commission.

The proposal, covering accommodations, housing and employment, does not place the Human Rights Officer either in the Community Development Department or as a separate department, however.

The public hearing on the creation of the new department will be Monday, July 9.

The fourth division will bring City Corporation Counsel Ralph Nelson's office into the organization.

Nelson would continue filing and monitoring the city's grant applications to state and federal agencies.

Clearing House

Additionally, the division would become a central clearing house for all the city's grant applications.

That division also would centralize administration of existing federal grant programs — such as the Lincoln Alcohol Safety Action Project and the Commission on Aging.

Wood suggested that city lawmakers also could consider placing certain general human service projects financed by general revenue sharing funds in this division.

The council is considering financing a number of such programs with revenue sharing funds. The city is slated to receive $4.5 million in such federal aid over a two-and-a-half year period.

In addition to these four divisions, the department could be expanded in the future to house a division of economic development.

When Mayor Schwartzkopf announced the creation of the department last month, he said he could foresee the time when such an office would be needed to promote business and industry in Lincoln.

The ordinance also set out the duties and responsibilities of the director of the Community Development Department. No public discussion has been held on who the director should be.

Rich Young Chicago Executive Escapes From His Kidnappers

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — A wealthy young Chicago executive escaped unharmed Friday from two men who kidnaped him on Wednesday night and demanded $1.5 million for his release. No ransom was paid, a lawyer for the executive's family said.

Melvyn H. Zahn, 34, president of the Zahn Drug Co., slipped away by crawling through a bathroom window in a house where he was held in Michigan City, 55 miles from Chicago.

Zahn flagged down a passing car driven by Edward Wojasinski, an off-duty policeman who alerted other authorities. As Zahn led police to the area where he was held, he saw his captors fleeing in separate automobiles and a chase ensued.

William Calhoun, 47, and George Ferris, 53, both of Chicago, were captured after they wrecked their cars trying to flee, police said. They were charged with kidnapping.

Zahn disappeared Wednesday after he left the company's warehouse offices in Melrose Park, a western suburb of Chicago. His luxury car was found abandoned with the engine running in Franklin Park, another suburb.

Later Wednesday, his millionaire father, Louis Zahn, founder of the drug firm, received a telephone call at his home in Oak Park, another suburb. The caller said, "We've got your son."

The elder Zahn received another call Thursday instructing him to go to a certain location in Oak Park where he would find a ransom note written by his son asking for $1.5 million.

The FBI said the younger Zahn told them he wrote a note at the insistence of his captors. The note instructed that a third of the ransom was to be in $1 bills; another third in $10 bills and the remainder in $50 bills.

But the elder Zahn received no instructions about where the money would be picked up.

Zahn told FBI agents after he escaped that he was first held in an apartment on the Northwest

Side in Chicago. FBI agents said they searched the apartment looking for "guns, pieces of chain, pieces of rope, pieces of tape and blankets."

Zahn had been handcuffed before he escaped but the cuffs were removed when he asked permission to go to the bathroom.

The Zahn firm serves 1,400 retail drug stores in the Midwest. The elder Zahn started the company, which became one of the country's largest drug wholesalers, in 1931 with a secondhand truck and $1,000 in credit.

Farmers' Prices Rise 6% In June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices farmers get for raw products soared 6 per cent in June and averaged 38 per cent more than a year earlier, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The report was for the month ended June 15. Prices of most raw agricultural products were not covered by the freeze announced by President Nixon on June 13.

Crop Reporting Board officials said higher prices for soybeans, corn, hogs, potatoes, wheat and eggs contributed most to the increase.

The 6 per cent gain compared with a 4 per cent gain in the index in May. The index had declined 1.5 per cent in April, the first drop in the year.

Soybeans, put under an export embargo by the administration on Wednesday, averaged a record $10 per bushel in June, compared with $8.27 in May and $3.32 a year ago.

Livestock prices generally rose 3 per cent in June. That put the department's meat animal index for cattle, hogs, sheep and lamb 33 per cent above a year earlier.

Hogs averaged $37.20 per one hundred pounds, compared with $35.20 in May and $25.60 a year earlier. The record high was set in March at $38.30 per hundredweight.

Beef cattle averaged a record $43.80 per one hundred pounds of live weight, up from $43.50 in May and the previous high of $43.60 last March. In June last year cattle were $34.50 per hundredweight.

Eggs rose to 50.6 cents per dozen at the farm, up from 45 cents in May and 27.7 cents a year earlier.

Live broiler chickens brought 24.5 cents per pound, compared with 23.8 cents in May and 14.4 cents a year earlier.

The index for all farm products averaged a record high and was 72 per cent more than in 1967, a year used as a base. In May the index was 63 per cent above the base and in June last year it was 25 per cent higher.

The June report also showed that prices farmers pay to meet expenses rose 2 per cent and averaged 16 per cent more than in June 1972.

FBI Says Crime Rate Down, But Violence Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department reported a slight decrease in the nation's over-all crime rate Friday, but said violent crimes were on the rise.

The FBI figures for the first three months of 1973 showed a 1 per cent drop in the number of major crimes compared with the same period a year ago.

But murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault jumped 6 per cent. The property crime categories of burglary, larceny and auto theft fell 2 per cent, the report said.

Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson son said the over-all decline was caused by a change in the way crime statistics are compiled from 5,711 state and local law enforcement agencies.

Previously, the report has included the category "larceny $50 and over." This year, the larceny category was broadened to include all larceny and theft because the dollar limit created confusion and failed to reflect inflation, the department said.

If the old method had been retained, Richardson said, the over-all crime rate would have shown a 1 per cent increase.

Voc-Tech Board Seeks Shift Information

The state Board of Vocational Technical Community Colleges Friday asked for more information before making a decision on an action taken earlier this week by the Central Nebraska Technical College Board.

The Central Nebraska Board voted 5-4 to move its administrative offices to Grand Island, but several Hastings area representatives appeared at Friday's state board meeting to protest that action.

Bill Connolly, a Hastings attorney who said he represented a number of private individuals in Hastings questioned the legality of the local board action and asked the state board to seek a ruling from the state Justice Department on the matter.

However, Mrs. Dorothy Beavers of Omaha, chairman of the state board, said the board needs more information and asked for "position papers" to be submitted to the board.

She said the matter could be included on the state board's July agenda for consideration and possible action.

A law passed by the 1973 legislature, which takes effect Sunday, requires approval of the state board for land purchases or leases by the local boards under the jurisdiction of the state board, said Connolly.

There is a "lack of clarity" in the law regarding the legality of the decision by the Central Nebraska Board, said Connolly, who noted the decision was made without lengthy advance notice. He suggested an attorney general's decision could clarify the matter.

Jack Crowley of Hastings told the state board he feels the decision to purchase up to 78 acres near Grand Island means that a new vocational technical school may be developed there by the Central Nebraska Board.

Although the Hastings group asked for action, Mrs. Beavers said the matter was on the agenda only as an "information item" and she repeatedly said the board members could not act until they received more information.

She said "verified facts" about the local board decision are needed.

Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings said the current laws appear to be overlapping and "they put us in the position of not quite knowing where we are."

U.S. OKs Bids On Gas, Oil

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal government said Friday it had rejected four bids but accepted the other 100 received at a June 19 sale for oil and gas leases on waterbottoms off the Louisiana and Texas coasts.

Three of the rejected bids were for tracts off Texas, the other one for offshore Louisiana land.

Accepted were bids totaling $1.584 billion for 547,173 acres. The money goes directly into the federal treasury. If any oil or gas is found on the tract, the company pays the government more in taxes.

Canada Adopts Export Controls

Ottawa (AP) — Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie announced Friday Canada was imposing controls on exports of soybeans, flax, rapeseed, cottonseed and linseed oils.

He said the action is necessary "in view of the uncertainty" arising from a U.S. embargo on exports of soybeans, cottonseeds and their byproducts announced on Wednesday.

Ex-UNL Staff Members Honored

Atlantic City, N.J. — Two former University of Nebraska staff members were honored here Thursday evening, each for their 50 years of membership in the American Home Economics Assn. (AHEA).

Miss Mary Guthrie, former chairman of the NU Department of Textiles, Clothing and Design, and Miss Alta Garrison, former nutrition researcher at NU, were honored at the Pacesetter Dinner during the annual convention of AHEA in session through Saturday.

Miss Guthrie retired from the University in 1962 after 26 years. She is a native of Lincoln and has taught home economics in Lincoln High and Everett and Irving Junior High Schools.

The major portion of Miss Garrison's home economics professional career was spent on the staff at Oregon State University where she taught nutrition and foods for 29 years. After retirement from Oregon State, Miss Garrison went to the University of Nebraska and for a year and half worked with Dr. Hazel Fox, chairman of the Department of Food and Nutrition, in nutrition research.

Two current University of Nebraska home economists are at the convention as national officers. Dr. Gwendolyn Newkirk, chairman of the Department of Education and Family Resources in the College of Home Economics, is vice president for program development for AHEA. Also Janet Wilson, extension consumer education specialist, is secretary of the family economics and management subject matter section.

NU Theatre Receives Shubert Foundation Grant

The theatre division of the department of speech and dramatic art of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln has received a $10,000 grant from the Shubert Foundation in New York City.

Dr. Harold W. Floyd, vice-chairman of the theatre division and the theatre business manager, said that the theatre staff and the administration of the university were delighted to receive the check.

An accompanying letter from the Shubert Foundation stated: "This check represents a grant to your organization in order to assist it in the fulfillment of its many worthy purposes."

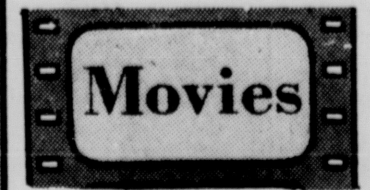

According to Dr. Floyd, the theatre division faculty has decided that the money will be used in a manner that "will make a permanent and significant contribution to our theatre program."

Husband Seeks 'Brothel Effort' Alimony Check

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Calvin J. Sandau's wife runs a house that's not a home, which is legal in some areas of Nevada. Sandau says she has a weekly income of $3,500.

Nelly Marie Sandau is suing him for divorce, and he asked $250 a week alimony, arguing that he had contributed to his wife's success as a brothel keeper but now earns only $50 a week for himself as a ranch hand.

U.S. District Judge Frank Gregory rejected Sandau's request.

BOY---then

MAN

That's my son, Jerry, literally two feet off the ground last Saturday in the top half of the ninth. His team was ahead by one run and the bases loaded when he caught the fly that ended the game.

Whatever else good happens to Jerry, I know he'll never forget that sweet thrill of victory.

Years from now, when faced with a tough situation, that memory could be the inspiration for another triumph. The things that happen to a boy do shape the man.

That's why I've always taken Jerry to our church. I want the smell of candles on the altar, the blend of voice and heart in hymn and litany, to be a part of his life. I want for him the joy that comes from understanding God.

My father did the same for me.
How about you?

Ecology Trophy Won By Panama, Lexington

By The Associated Press
Lexington and Panama were announced Friday as co-winners of the traveling trophy presented annually by the Governor's Council to Keep Nebraska Beautiful.

The trophy, recognizing outstanding environmental improvement efforts, was won last year by Clay Center.

As co-winners, Lexington and Panama each will share the trophy for six months.

The recognition was a feature of a luncheon highlighting Nebraska environmental Awards Day, sponsored by the governor's council.

Eighty-two Nebraska communities received certificates of appreciation from Gov. and Mrs. J. J. Exon at the luncheon, at which Dr. Carl S. Winters, member of the lecture staff of General Motors Corp., was speaker.

Honored as ecology flag winners in their population categories were the communities of Panama, Scotia, Chappell, Ralston and Lexington.

Winners of special awards included Tilden, Wahoo, Hastings, the Blair Riverview Junior Grange, Clarkson, the G. Grasse farm at Waterloo, Milo G. Kahn of Kennard, Lefty Olson of Wakefield, and the Coleridge community.

Additional certificates of appreciation went to the Council Bluffs, Iowa, "Good Neighbor" Group; Nebraska Federated Women's Clubs; Mrs. David Rose, Hastings; Lancaster Extension Service, Garden Clubs; University Place Community Organization and Izaak Walton League, all of Lincoln; Ponca Hills Neighborhood, Rockbrook Grade School, Offutt

Air Force Base Girl Scouts, College of St. Mary and University of Nebraska at Omaha Biology Club, all of Omaha.

Forenoon features included presentations of the story of a cleanup at Offutt Air Force Base, and the Tilden story — "A Small Community That Gets Things Done."

Questions brought by community representatives from throughout the state were answered by a panel.

Tecumseh Project Nears Goal Line

Lincoln Star Special
Tecumseh — School and community folks who wanted better athletic facilities so bad they were willing to "do it themselves" will put the finishing touches on an improved football field and running track here Saturday.

The laying of sod on the field will be the last major step to be taken to complete the project, which began about a year ago when the local school board decided it was reluctant to appropriate tax money for the purpose.

Taking that negative decision in stride, parents who had raised a ruckus over the facilities decided they'd just do the job on their own.

A committee of town citizens and school people was formed and the drive was on.

First, they went to other townfolks, asking donations for the athletic facility fund. They turned to the Campbell Soup Co. plant in the town and got a sizable donation there and from the union at the plant.

Then they contacted everyone who had graduated from Tecumseh High School since 1898.

With the $15,000 they raised, the planning began and the project was on.

With virtually all donated labor, a four-lane track that had been an obstacle course complete with light poles was transformed into a modern eight-lane oval.

Fairbury Farmer Starts Wheat Harvest

With a brand new combine to try, Harold Adams of Fairbury was even more anxious than the average farmer for the start of the wheat harvest. His first field (scout variety) brought forth a 56-bushel yield, along with a 62-pound weight test and moisture content of 13%. One of the first farmers along Nebraska's southern tier of counties to begin cutting, he was assisted by son Tom, center, and a visiting California cousin, Ron Bell. (Star Photo.)

Nurse Helps Educate Rural Areas

"Physicians in Nebraska have always been conservative. They were convinced that public health was socialistic," according to Mrs. Calista Cooper Hughes, director of Comprehensive Health Planning in Nebraska.

Mrs. Hughes spoke at the annual conference of the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs.

A public health nurse who takes health education to rural areas does not compete with a doctor, she said. Her function is to help with health education in schools, keep immunization records, which are now required by law, and in more remote areas, perhaps help establish well-baby clinics and mother-to-be schools, according to Mrs. Hughes.

The public health program is the simplest form of rural health care, she said, and "that is what we must return to." According to Mrs. Hughes, the first step in obtaining a public health nurse is to ask county commissioners to establish a county health department. Financing can be made available from the state. Butler and Dakota counties are now receiving state money.

A public health nurse can recognize medical symptoms, Mrs. Hughes said, but she cannot diagnose or prescribe. If she refers the patient to a doctor, she will follow through on the doctor's orders.

Mrs. Hughes, a former state senator, said much of the work of a public health nurse is for welfare patients, "but every county has welfare patients."

The nurse helps establish an atmosphere of health education, which is important in rural areas where people do not contact a doctor until it may be too late.

she said.

Mrs. Hughes discussed new roles for health professionals that are being tried or used in other states. One of these is the physicians' assistant, which requires four years of college with basic sciences, and two additional years, one in basic education and one in clinical experience.

The physicians' assistant's ideal role would be to live in a small town where there is no doctor but one could be reached if needed, Mrs. Hughes said. But she added that the Nebraska licensing board will probably rule that the assistant can only serve in a nurse-like role in a town where there is a doctor.

"That's not what we envisioned," she said.

Nebraska's small towns will receive doctors eventually, Mrs. Hughes said. There will be too many doctors in Lincoln and Omaha, so they will have to go to small towns, she said. Research funds from the government may be cut back, forcing those doctors back into practice, another hope for small towns, she added.

Mrs. Hughes also said doctors need continuing education, and she said she hopes it will come through educational television.

Musical Therapy Helps Deaf Talk Normally ...Sensitivity To Vibrations Improves Voice, Danish Expert Says

Teachers of handicapped children have been learning this week the fundamentals of a new approach in musical therapy from Claus Bang, a Danish expert in the field.

Bang spent the week conducting workshops in Beatrice and in Lincoln under the sponsorship of the Midwest Regional Media Center for the Deaf, with support from the departments of speech pathology and special education and the School of Music at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"The therapy program Mr. Bang has been teaching this group of teachers of handicapped children goes beyond the normal dance-rhythmic activities usually used in teaching the deaf. His is a total personal involvement approach toward learning to develop sensitivity to vibrations with the goal of improvement in voice quality," explained Dr. Robert E. Stepp, director of the Media Center.

The workshop conducted at the Beatrice State Home has included teachers from that school and from the Lutheran School for Handicapped Children and Education Service Unit 5. The University workshop has drawn teachers from Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and South Dakota.

Musical As A Means

Bang describes the therapy program developed in Denmark as one which uses music as a "means" and not an "end." "We are using music to help develop the handicapped child, as an instrument to comfort and relieve, to improve and maybe cure the voice condition of a handicapped child."

A typical exercise in the therapy program might involve a teacher at the piano and a deaf student holding a set of four bongo drums. The student senses the vibrations of a tone played on the piano, and attempts to match it by striking the proper drum and making the same sound with his voice.

"Even totally deaf children can be trained to feel the vibrations caused by music and to reproduce the different tones. This training helps them to speak more normally, overcoming the usual monotone character of a deaf person's voice," Bang said.

He points out that the music therapy program has been extended beyond the deaf and is now being used to help children with multiple handicaps, the mentally retarded, psychotic children and is also being adapted for use with normal children in kindergartens.

"It might seem odd that music would be used to teach deaf children until you realize that they are sensitive to vibrations made by music. The lower notes are felt in the lower part of the body and the higher notes in the upper part. Practice such as this therapy is important to development of such residual hearing as a child might have," explained Dr. Stepp.

Betty Sipek, a teacher at the Beatrice State Home, believes that the therapy program presented by Bang can be adapted and put to good use there in connection with their work with the mentally retarded.

"We use some musical therapy and it has been successful but it is not as extensive as we are seeing demonstrated in this workshop. Many of the exercises Mr. Bang has presented will help in the development of speech, body movement, muscle and motor development in handicapped children," she said.

Ora Mae Rice, director of education at the Woodhaven Learning Center in Columbia, Mo., a private school for children with multiple handicaps, calls the program presented by Bang a "fantastic breakthrough, an excellent avenue for teaching the handicapped."

"My school's music teacher is also attending this workshop and I'm sure we will find some way to put this program to use."

For Bang this is the second trip to Nebraska in a year. In October he addressed the annual conference on Mental Deficiency in Omaha. His appearance there generated such interest that at the request of teachers in Nebraska Dr. Stepp made arrangements for him to return for this workshop.

He graduated from teachers college in 1961 with a specialty in piano, organ, singing and music history. He earned a degree in special education and teaching the deaf in 1963 and has worked with the deaf and hard of hearing for 12 years, developing an international reputation through his work with music therapy.

Army Hits Drug Charge Of 2 Nebraska Soldiers

Bamberg, Germany (UPI) — The U.S. Army Thursday rejected the charges of two Nebraska soldiers that their base was a hotbed of drug abuse and said drug offenders there "are chucked out as fast as the system will permit."

A regimental spokesman for the 2nd Armored Cavalry Unit at Bamberg, West Germany, answered charges leveled by Pvt. Allen Barber and Randy Pittman, both Nebraskans.

Barber and Pittman have said they would refuse to return to duty at Bamberg from their current home leaves because drug abuse there was rampant and the Army was covering it up.

U.S. Sens. Roman L. Hruska and Carl T. Curtis, both Republicans of Nebraska, asked the Army to investigate.

"The use of drugs in Bamberg appears to be declining and soldiers who are recognized as repeated drug abusers are chucked out as fast as the administrative system will permit," the spokesman said.

"A U.S. Army drug assessment team has determined the soldiers overstated their claims and the drug abuse problem is no worse and no better in Bamberg than the drug problem in other Army installations in Germany."

The spokesman said 20 soldiers stationed at Bamberg had received administrative discharges for drug abuse since March 20.

He said Bamberg had about 1,000 soldiers on duty station, 38 of whom were currently enrolled in the rehabilitation program of the Community Drug and Alcohol Abuse Center for drug problems.

Barber reportedly told newsmen he would sooner go to jail than return to Bamberg because of the drug situation there. Pittman's mother reportedly has asked Sen. Curtis to get her son out of the Army.

work with the mentally retarded.

"We use some musical therapy and it has been successful but it is not as extensive as we are seeing demonstrated in this workshop. Many of the exercises Mr. Bang has presented will help in the development of speech, body movement, muscle and motor development in handicapped children," she said.

Ora Mae Rice, director of education at the Woodhaven Learning Center in Columbia, Mo., a private school for children with multiple handicaps, calls the program presented by Bang a "fantastic breakthrough, an excellent avenue for teaching the handicapped."

"My school's music teacher is also attending this workshop and I'm sure we will find some way to put this program to use."

Supply Of Gas To Rise

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Gasoline supplies in Nebraska for the coming week should be improved as stations receive their July quotas, the Cornhusker Motor Club said Friday in its weekly fuel gauge report.

The report also noted that nearly one-third of the 37 stations contacted indicated that they would either close or be open only during the morning hours on the Fourth of July.

Belated reports from along State Highway 2 from Grand Island to the South Dakota border indicate that more stations are observing extended nighttime hours.

The report said there appears to be no illegal hikes in prices following the Phase IV freeze. The highest price was at an Interstate 80 station in Kearney where premium gas was 48.9 cents a gallon.

Tourists are faring worse than local customers, the report indicated. One out of every five stations near major highways reported that they are giving preferential amounts of gasoline to local people and regular customers and some are limiting out-of-state cars to as little as $2 purchases.

Nebraska, with 50 per cent of the reporting stations still operating under normal conditions, appears to be better off than some neighboring states, the club said.

The Kansas AAA club reported only four per cent of its stations operating under normal conditions.

Only 20 per cent of the stations surveyed in Colorado were operating normally and one-third were rationing gasoline.

Less than half of South Dakota's stations reported normal operations and rationing was in effect at one out of five outlets.

Iowa reported only 38 per cent of its stations operating normally.

However, Wyoming gasoline supplies were reported to be holding up well, especially in the Teton and Yellowstone Park areas.

They are used to bring a shovel or spade and assist in the groundbreaking ceremonies to be held at the site of construction. Special guests and honorary ground-breakers will include the State Commissioner of Education Cecil Stanley and local officials.

Pair Escape Injury In Plane Crash

Hay Springs (AP) — Two Scottsbluff men escaped injury when their single-engine airplane crashed on takeoff at the Hay Springs airport Thursday. State Patrol Cpl. Don Dodson said the plane was piloted by Arthur Charles Gamet who was accompanied by Vic Anderson. The plane, a Piper Cherokee 140 owned by Scottsbluff Aviation, Inc., was destroyed, Dodson said. Dodson said the plane flipped onto its top when the pilot tried to stop the craft because he felt he lacked sufficient runway to take off.

Sunol (AP) — North Platte Postmaster Victor Kulmann said Friday that the Sunol Post Office will be closed effective Saturday. Sunol subscribers will begin receiving their mail by rural delivery through the Lodgepole Post Office next week. Kulmann said the decision to close the Sunol Post Office came as the result of the retirement of Sunol Postmistress Mrs. I. A. Caldwell. He said a survey by the postal service indicated that the majority of the Sunol patrons preferred to receive their mail by rural delivery.

Fairbury Farmer Starts Wheat Harvest

With a brand new combine to try, Harold Adams of Fairbury was even more anxious than the average farmer for the start of the wheat harvest. His first field (scout variety) brought forth a 56-bushel yield, along with a 62-pound weight test and moisture content of 13%. One of the first farmers along Nebraska's southern tier of counties to begin cutting, he was assisted by son Tom, center, and a visiting California cousin, Ron Bell. (Star Photo.)

Omaha Gold Cup Slated

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Denied his first $50,000-added Ak-Sar-Ben winner's share purse one week ago, Ken Opstein tries again Saturday in the second of Ak-Sar-Ben's four major stakes.

The South Sioux City horseman, who started slowly in the business and now is one of the state's premier owners, saw his Havelgo lose a photograph decision in last week's Cornhusker Handicap. The winner was Joey Bob, owned by old nemesis Jack Van Berg and former major league baseball standout Joe Adcock.

But in Saturday's $50,000-added Omaha Gold Cup, Opstein has Royal Knight, who has won his last four races, going for the big prize in this 21st edition of the mile and 1/16th classic for 3-year-olds.

After starting slowly at Hialeah and Gulfstream Park in Florida, Royal Knight, won with authority (by 14 lengths) at the Nebraska Derby at Ponner Park in Grand Island. He then breezed to three Omaha victories, including his last start on June 16 in the 4-H Handicap when he carried 127 pounds.

This season, Royal Knight has won four of seven starts for $26,760.

But Royal Knight will only tote 120 pounds including jockey J.L. Lively and has Opstein's hopes to stop the Van Berg domination.

Van Berg, who swept Ak's four major stakes last season and won the Cornhusker one week ago, will send out Island Leader, who he co-owns with W.E. Trotter II.

Island Leader, who lost by less than two lengths to Royal Knight in the 4-H Handicap, has 3 wins in 11 outings this season while campaigning at Aqueduct, Belmont and Omaha.

But lurking in the background are three invaders who are

Rail, Snipe Seasons Set

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, at a meeting Friday morning, set Snipe and Rail seasons for this fall.

Sora and Virginia Rail shooting will begin Sept. 1 and continue through Nov. 9, with a bag limit of 25 and possession limit of 25 to be in effect.

The Snipe season will extend from Sept. 15 through Nov. 18, with a bag limit of eight and a possession limit of 16.

In each case shooting on a statewide basis will be legal from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset.

A new regulation this year will make it unlawful for a hunter to have either Snipe or Rail in his possession without the head and full plumage attached to aid the game officers in identification.

In other commission action during the Friday meeting, Ted Stutheit was named the new assistant chief of the state parks.

He replaces Dale Bree, who was advanced to the top spot after the resignation of John Strain last year.

The commissioners also authorized the staff to set up private commercial fishery operations on Sutherland, Maloney and Johnson lake reservoirs on an experimental basis for the next two years.

The commercial operations will seine only rough, non-game fish from the waters. They will be selected on a bid basis after the necessary contracts can be drawn.

Reds Conduct Tryout Camp

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

If past history is any indication, then three or four players who attended the Cincinnati Reds' tryout camp Friday morning at Lincoln's Sherman Field, will have completed step one towards reaching the major leagues.

"Last year when I was here, we followed through on 3 of 42 kids," said Fred Uhlman, supervisory scout with Cincinnati. "We had 52 here today, but I won't know how many we'll keep looking at until I post all the information that I've taken today."

"Last year, the three that we continued to look at were all high school juniors. Now they are high school graduates and we keep looking at them."

Uhlman, who has scouted for the past seven years for Cincinnati, said the primary areas of importance for the prospects include running speed, throwing arms, and batting quickness.

At Friday's session, all prospects were clocked in the 60-yard dash. Then they were given fielding tests at their regular positions and the pitchers and catchers were given drills and all players received a batting test.

"It's usually relatively easy to pick out the better players," Uhlman said. "All you have to do is figure out the scores according to the things we covered and then compare the players."

"The hard part is finding the pitchers since pitchers can be off one day and not do very well. With base running, the times will usually be about the same, but a pitcher, who is really a hoping to crack the Omaha track's jinx on invaders attempting to win major races.

Hearts of Luttuce, King's Reel and Crimson Falcon all boast impressive credentials in an attempt to become the first invader since Son Jack in 1967 to win the Gold Cup.

A winner of 3 of 8 starts this year for $31,000, Hearts of Luttuce finished second to Our Native in the $100,000 Ohio Derby at Thistledown on June 16. Out Native ran third to Triple Crown winner Secretariat in both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness Stakes.

King's Reel, who finished sixth to Linda's Chief in the Grand Prix at Arlington Park on June 16, has captured 3 of 15 starts for $34,700 this year.

Crimson Falcon, who has campaigned at Churchill Downs this spring, has earned $39,575 on 2 wins in 10 starts. He finished ninth in the Ohio Derby.

Two horses owned by South Dakotans are also set for the second of Ak's major races.

Pro Raja, owned by Ray Schuyler of Winner, S.D., has 3 wins in 7 1973 starts while O.J. Glass of Jefferson, S.D., has Quiet Story, the winner of this year's Ambassadors' Handicap here on May 12.

Other entrants include Helen L. Kenaston's Headingly and Jack Grunwald's Mike James.

Exon To Present

Nebraska Gov. J.J. Exon will present the Omaha Gold Cup Trophy to the winning owner of Saturday's Gold Cup race.

Secretariat on TV

Ak-Sar-Ben will present television coverage of the Secretariat race at Arlington Park on all closed circuit TV screens. The Chicago race, set for 5:18 p.m., will be shown live if it does not conflict with an Omaha race or will be shown on a taped basis.

24,000 Fans?

Ak-Sar-Ben officials are predicting upwards of 24,000 fans for Saturday's Gold Cup race. Last Saturday's crowd was 24,197.

Walter, Sieckman Set For Saturday Finals

... CHAMPIONSHIP MATCH AT 1:30 P.M.

By HAL BROWN

Star Sports Editor

Fremont — Chuck Walter, a Lincoln accountant, and Tom Sieckman, a recent graduate of Millard High School, both seeking their first major tournament victory, will meet here Saturday afternoon in the finals of the Nebraska Match Play Golf Tournament.

Walter has played the best golf in the tournament through the first four matches to move into the championship match while the tow-headed Sieckman stopped giant-killer John Tomasiewicz Friday afternoon at the Fremont Golf Club to reach the championship finals.

Walter, a 25-year-old former Geneva High School and University of Nebraska golfer whose biggest win has been in the Central City Open, has played the first four matches in five-under-par.

He was seven-under-par for his first three victories and defeated Bob Holmes, a former professional from Omaha, 1-up, in Friday afternoon's semifinals with a two-over-par after eliminating Peru State golfer Guy Lammie, 1-up, on the 19th hole in Friday morning's quarterfinals.

Sieckman, recognized as one of the state's top young golfers despite having never won the State High School golf championship, ousted reigning State Amateur champion Dan Bahensky of Lincoln Friday morning, 3 and 2, and then shot two-under-par golf in the afternoon to dispose of Tomasiewicz, 6 and 4.

Tomasiewicz, a railroad engineer who drives a train school, Uhlman said one prospect drove 260 miles from Sioux Falls, S.D., to attend. Other players were from Lincoln, Omaha, Bellevue, York, Hastings, Kearney, Seward, Papillion, Wayne, Tilden and Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Uhlman, who will conduct a Saturday morning tryout camp in Ogallala, said he usually watches between 400 and 500 players each summer.

Besides, Lincoln, he conducts tryout camps in Kansas towns such as Manhattan, Garden City, and El Dorado, Pueblo, Colo.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Calgary and Lethbridge in Alberta, Canada; and Sheridan, Wyo.

Uhlman said he also scouts at the annual College World Series in Omaha and the National Baseball Congress Tournament at Wichita, Kan.

Among the current major league standouts he has recruited is pitcher Ross Grimsley, who compiled a 14-8 record last season for the Reds. Uhlman said he "found" Grimsley at an American Legion baseball tournament at Manchester, N.H.

Perhaps another Grimsley took his first step towards the big leagues Friday at Lincoln's Sherman Field.

The Giants play to use Glover in the "Mac" position in their defense, where he will play right over the opposing center.

In addition, Dr. O. H. Person of Wahoo, was honored for his

"I didn't really think about him beating those other two," the 18-year-old Sieckman, who is headed for the University of Nebraska, said. "I just figured to play the best I could."

The best he could was a two-under-par round that put him in the finals.

Numbered among Walter's victims in the tournament was defending champion Mike Ley of Lincoln, who was eliminated by 3 and 1 in Thursday afternoon's second round.

Walter had to go an extra hole to defeat Lammie despite playing the two-under-par golf through the first 18 holes. Walter won the match with a birdie-3 on the first extra hole.

During the match, he eagled the 497-yard par-5 eighth hole, rated as the number one handicap hole of the Fremont Golf Club course.

The championship match will get underway at the Fremont Golf Club at 1:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon.

Secretariat At Arlington

CHICAGO (AP) — It was only a gallop, but the horse was Secretariat, and a hoard of horsemen and 500 outsiders, including children and two carloads of college students from Iowa, turned out Friday to watch.

The Triple Crown winner galloped 1 1/4 miles at Arlington Park as he loosened up for a $125,000 race billed as the Arlington Invitational Saturday which has been proclaimed Secretariat Day by Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

George Getz, trainer of Blue Chip Dan, said it was sort of like David against Goliath but added: "My horse doesn't have a sling shot and a rock."

Joining Secretariat and Blue Chip Dan in the 1 1/4 mile race will be Our Native and My Gallant.

Queen's Turn Takes Futurity Stakes Race

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — It could have been the start that made the difference, but Aurora horseman Paul Kemling doesn't think the difference was noticeable.

Kemling's Queen's Turn raced wire-to-wire in the $20,000-added The Futurity Stakes at Ak-Sar-Ben here Friday to post a two and three-quarter length victory over M. H. Van Berg Stables' Rambunctious Road.

"She's a good little filly," Kemling said about Queen's Turn after the brown filly won her second stakes victory in a row. She won The Lassie Stakes last week five furlongs. "I was a little worried about Van Berg's colt (who won The Laddie Stakes) but that slow start made the difference."

"I knew when Rambunctious Road sat down in the gate at the start that our filly would be hard to catch. She broke good. But she always breaks good," he offered.

Joackey Don Stauffer agreed on the break from the gate at the start of the 5 1/2 furlong jaunt for 2-year-old Nebraska breds.

"When she broke on top like that, I just sat on top of her and let her do the work. I never touched her with my whip," he explained. "I just hand-rode her all the way."

"I thought I had the best mount," Stauffer said, then hesitated. "No, I KNEW I had the best mount. I wasn't worried about any of the other horses in that race."

Kemling, however, said he was worried about the Van Berg entry explaining: "I always worry about Van Berg's horses. They're all good and real hard to beat."

"That horse though (Rambunctious Road), runs real green. He's not settled enough yet," Kemling said softly. "He ran green in The Laddie and he did it again today."

Last week in winning The Lassie Stakes, Queen's Turn ran the route in two-fifths of a second better than Kemling's Bold Accent did as a 2-year-old. But Kemling was still leery about comparing the two.

"She's got a long way to go yet before she's the equal of Bold Accent," Kemling said. "But she's getting there. We've got her nominated for the Gold Rush Futurity (in Denver) and I think that's a $100,000 race. If she wins that, then she'll have proven herself."

After breaking on top, Queen's Turn steadily opened up a lead over the field as Rambunctious Road came from behind under steady urging from jockey Leroy Moyers to pull within two lengths of Queen's Turn in the stretch run. But the chestnut colt by Ramblin Road out of Joy Son couldn't catch the flying filly and finished three and one-quarter lengths in front of third-place Zim's Pride.

"You never wish a guy bad luck," Kemling said about Rambunctious Road's start. "But you always have to take advantage when it happens. If he could've gotten a good start, he might have given us a little more trouble. But I still think we would've beaten him."

In winning the Futurity, Queen's Turn returned $3.00, $2.20 and $2.20 to backers in the crowd of 12,923. Rambunctious Road placed for $2.60 and $2.40 while Zim's Pride showed for $2.60. Queen's Turn went off as the 1-2 favorite among bettors.

The winner's share of the $26,600 total purse, $14,630, swelled Queen's Turn 2-year-old earnings to $52,949 while Jack Van Berg collected $5,054 for second to boost Rambunctious Road to $18,008. Zim's Pride, owned by Bud Ogden and George hallock, added $3,724 to his 1972 earnings of $5,254.

Queen's Turn's record now stands at five wins and two place finishes out of nine starts while Rambunctious Road's record is now one win, two places and one show out of four starts.

Ak-Sar-Ben Honors Van Berg, British Fleet

Omaha — British Fleet was named "Nebraska-bred Horse of the Year" for 1972 Friday afternoon at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Bred by the M. H. Van Berg Stable, Inc., of Columbus, British Fleet won $102,987 in 1972, to become the first Nebraska-bred to win more than $100,000 in one year. In addition, British Fleet also won honors as "Nebraska-bred Three-Year-Old of the Year."

British Fleet was Ak-Sar-Ben's Horse of the Year last year, winning the $50,000-added Omaha Gold Cup, the $50,000-added President's Cup and the $25,000-added M. H. Van Berg Memorial Stakes. However, he suffered a broken leg while racing at Detroit last fall and had to be destroyed.

The Van Berg Stable, under the direction of trainer Jack Van

Berg, also was honored as "Nebraska Breeder of the Year."

The "Nebraska-bred Two-Year-Old of the Year" was Funny Nickel, bred by Frank Sillik of Omaha. "Nebraska-bred Older Horse of the Year" for the second straight year is Foreign Comet, bred by Barton H. Ford of Valley.

In addition, Dr. O. H. Person of Wahoo, was honored for his many years of service as a veterinarian. Dr. Person is retiring from active practice.

The resolution, presented by Racing Commissioner Duane Fudge, read:

"Whereas, this outstanding practitioner devoted many years to the benefit and betterment of Thoroughbred horse racing in this state through his conscientious and dedicated service;

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Nebraska State Racing Commission go on record today thanking Dr. Person for his devoted labors in behalf of racing, that, further, the Commission express to Dr. Person and his wife, Ruth, its wishes for their continued health and happiness and offer from all of the people connected with racing in Nebraska, including officials, management and horsemen, a well-deserved Thank You."

It was signed by Fudge, chairman Harry Farnham and vice-chairman Kenny Jenkins.

Judges for the Nebraska breeders awards were Dean Williams, correspondent for the Daily Racing Form; Don Lee, turf editor of the Omaha World-Herald; and Mort Porter, executive secretary of the Nebraska State Racing Commission.

Irwin Paces Western Open

CHICAGO (AP) — Arnold Palmer's red-hot putter turned stone cold and former collegiate football star Hale Irwin swept into the second-round lead Friday in the $175,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

Irwin, an All-Big Eight Conference selection in his collegiate days at Colorado, fashioned a solid, five-under-par 66 and took a two-stroke lead halfway through this old tournament.

Irwin's 133 total was nine-under-par on the compact 6,554-yard Midlothian Country Club course and four in front of the suddenly troubled Palmer.

Australian Bruce Crampton, the season's leading money winner, and a longshot, Rik Massengale, shared second with 135 totals.

Crampton and Massengale, tied with Palmer for the lead at the end of the first 18 holes, each had a 69 in the mild, cloudy weather.

Veteran Billy Casper, winner of the Western the last time it was played at Midlothian, was next with a 69-136.

Palmer was one of four at 137. His 71 Friday included 12 missed putts of 15-feet or less, six of them from inside six feet.

He was tied with Australian Bruce Devlin, rookie Tom Kite, and Richard Crawford. Crawford and Kite matched 67s and Devlin had a 69.

Lee Trevino was six strokes off the pace with a 70-139. Jack Nicklaus, U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller, and Tom Weiskopf are not competing.

"I just couldn't get the damn ball in the hole," the 43-year-old Palmer grumbled. "It was just unbelievable. I could have had a hell of a good round. I should have had about 31 going out and, well, about 31 on the back nine."

But his putter, which conquered the bumpy, spiked-up greens Thursday with 10 one-putts, suddenly quit on him. He three-putted twice, took three from the fringe on another occasion and missed three putts of three feet or less.

Irwin, a 28-year-old who has been a regular on the pro tour for six years, had a very solid effort. "It was an extremely steady round," he said. "It all blended in together pretty well."

He missed only two fairways and one green and didn't have a bogey as he made a bid for his first victory since the 1971 Heritage Classic.

Irwin made a 10-footer for a duce on his second hole, punched short-irons within 18 inches on two other birdie holes and chipped up to six inches for an easy save on the only green he missed on the front nine.

He pulled in front alone with birdies on two of his last three holes, one with an eight-foot putt and the other with a 10-footer on his final hole.

The tight little layout yielded some extremely low scores, but the best was a sparkling, seven-under-par 64 by Leonard Thompson, a second-year pro from Wake Forest. He had a 141 total.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
